Buy BCE—Coldwell

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said here Monday that the British Columbia Electric Company must be bought out as the first move in saving and building this province for British Columbians.

Green Hits Soereds

VANCOUVER—External Affairs Minister Green announced Monday he will take part in British Columbia's election campaign.

He criticized Social Credit Premier Bennett for "throwing his babies on the federal fire."

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's two space-travelling dogs took a public bow in Moscow Monday and if there is anything wrong with life in the cosmos it hasn't shown up in them yet.

At a dog conference at the Russian news agency Tass I patted both dogs. From looking at them, you'd never know they were whizzing around the earth about 200 miles up as late as Saturday.

The dogs were nervous at first. They quickly became friendly after first giving me a growl. Strelka (Little Arrow) came and licked my hand.

Strelka and Belka (Squirrel) are small dogs about 10 pounds each. The size of fox terriers, they are of mixed ancestry.

HARNESSES REMOVED

The electric harness of the space ride had been removed from the dogs. But they wore sweaters to hide the electrodes still buried under their hides. A rat, two black mice and two white mice were in little cages about four by eight inches and they galloped around inside.

The Russian newspaper Pravda went into some detail on the dogs' reactions in flight as revealed by a television camera aboard the space ship.

"At the start the dogs looked alarmed and bewildered at the noise of takeoff."

"They were disturbed—dashed around during the first seconds of flight. Then the increased force of the pressure on the takeoff pushed them to the floor."

"Strelka tried to resist with her paws and looked around in alarm."

WEIGHTLESS STATE

"Then came the state of weightlessness. The dogs hung in the air. The paws and heads hung limply down. Gradually they began raising their heads and moving their paws. Belka got angry and started barking. . . . But gradually they got used to everything."

Judge Lenient To Loyal Wife

B.C. Gas for B.C. Cars

Premier Pledges New PGE Link

By H. L. JONES

FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Premier Bennett announced Monday night that the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern railway has opened negotiations with the Northern Alberta Railway for a second connection between the two lines.

The PGE already connects with the NAR at Dawson Creek. The premier told a political rally that if the NAR will build from Hines Creek to the B.C. border the PGE will be extended northward to make the next connections.

The move would provide direct rail transport for a vast productive oil and agriculture area on both sides of the border that now mostly depends on truck transport.

The premier, opening his Sept. 12 election campaign, made the announcement during an hour-and-a-half address before a meeting attended by some 600 persons, probably the largest political meeting ever held in this centre of B.C.'s growing northern oil country.

The premier reviewed the eight-year record of his government and made these other main points.

1. Construction will start shortly on a $93,000,000 natural gas line from Fort Nelson to Taylor near here.

2. Construction will begin forthwith on a vast oil gathering system to bring B.C. crude to the refinery at Taylor and "if there is enough oil we will see that a pipeline is built to Vancouver."

"We are going to see to it that British Columbia car owners will have an opportunity to use B.C. oil and B.C. gas," he said.

Venezuela Mobilizes For Attack

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The newspaper El Mundo said Monday Venezuela is mobilizing its air and naval forces against possible attack by the Dominican Republic.

Strikers Restive

Seamen Leaders Call Off Strike

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—Leaders of the "National Seamen's Reform Movement" called off a wildcat strike here Monday night after admitting strikers were showing signs of discontent.

But strike leaders in some other British ports were reported urging seamen to stick it out.

Southampton leaders announced their decision after a meeting attended by about 50 strikers—the smallest turnout since the strike began two weeks ago.

The leaders here, however, said they would still go on recruiting members for their organization, aimed as much against the seamen's union as the shipowners. The "reform movement" made the original call for the walkout, which spread rapidly to other ports.

One of the strike leaders said the men already involved in the stoppage were being advised to return to their ships. No further attempt would be made to bring out on strike the crews of any of the liners now in Southampton.

Advance Poll Dates Set

Advance polls for voters of the Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay ridings who can't cast their ballots Sept. 12 will be held Sept. 8, 9 and 10 in the YMCA, Victoria returning officer A. M. Browne said yesterday.

Hours of voting will be from 1 to 9 p.m. each day.

More Than 500 Die In Cholera Epidemic

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI)—More than 500 persons have died in a cholera epidemic that has swept across west Pakistan, the ministry of health reported yesterday.

The epidemic has been brought under control, it was said, but reports of a few new cases continue to trickle in. Officials said the U.S. international co-operation administration had been of great help in a mass inoculation program.

Japan's Peace Offer Stalled 21 Days Before Hiroshima

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newspaper reports on still-secret state papers say they show former president Harry Truman allowed Russia to stall off a Japanese peace offer three weeks before the first atomic bomb wrecked Hiroshima.

The reports say also that Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin once praised Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as an "honest man" for turning over to the Russians 135,000 German troops who had tried to surrender to American forces.

United States Charge:

Guerrillas, Spies Trained in Cuba

To Spread Revolution In Latin America

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—The United States yesterday accused Cuba of training red spies and guerrilla fighters "to spread the Communist revolution throughout Latin America."

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa had no comment on the startling charge made to the American foreign ministers gathered here in emergency meeting to consider the threat of growing Communist influence in the hemisphere.

AT CONFERENCE

He said that "all I'll have to say I will . . . at the conference."

But diplomats other than Cuban expressed concern that the United States had failed to document the charge properly, although many of them did not doubt the truth of it.

The United States said that "an international work brigade" formed in Havana was "a common Communist device" for carrying out subversion.

Shortly after the surprise release of the documents the Cuban delegation invited newsmen to a reception scheduled for next Wednesday night to see movies of "interest."

NOT KNOWN

The nature of the films were not known but they presumably related to Cuba's planned presentation of charges against the United States before the conference.

The sensational U.S. accusations, made public only an hour before the start of yesterday's conference proceedings, said that Cuba had imported more than 200 recruits for a "work brigade," most of them from Iron Curtain countries.

TO DEFEND CUBA

The U.S. said the brigade ostensibly was formed to build an "educational centre" in the Sierra Maestra, but it noted that the Cuban government newspaper Revolucion editorially boasted its members "will use arms to defend Cuba."

The charges were made in a document presented to the inter-American peace committee of the Organization of American States.

Cuba also was accused of attacking religious freedom in Cuba, described by the U.S. as "the last remaining vestige of individual liberty" in that country.

Lyricist Dies

Hammerstein Era Ends

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Oscar Hammerstein II, famed Broadway lyricist and producer, died of cancer today. He was 65.

Hammerstein died at his home at nearby Highland Farms of stomach cancer.

HIT OF CENTURY

With Richard Rodgers, Hammerstein wrote some of the most notable and popular shows of the century.

"I am in love with a wonderful theatre," was Hammerstein's own comment on the career that swept across 40 years of entertainment enterprise.

SHOW HISTORY

One biographer noted: "He has been associated with more notable musicals than any other showman in the history of the American theatre."

When composer Cole Porter was once asked to name the most profound change in musical theatre in recent years, he replied tersely, "Rodgers and Hammerstein."

ALL COMPOSERS

He began by writing a play in 1920, but soon after developed into a lyricist, writing words for the music of virtually every ranking composer—Rudolph Friml, Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern, Vincent Youmans, and George Gershwin.

Poignant, tender and touching were the rhymes that poured in an endless torrent from his pen, until there were the words of more than a thousand songs.

WHAT HE WROTE

Among them were "Ol' Man River," "Who?" "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," "Only Make Believe." Later came the products of R and H teamwork—"Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "People Will Say We're in Love," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "You'll Never Walk Alone," "Some Enchanted Evening," and "Younger Than Springtime."

"I know the world is filled with trouble and many injustices," he said of his unabashed sentimentality, "but reality is as beautiful as it is ugly."

Blots Sun

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Clouds of volcanic ash blotted out the sun over a 50-mile-square area Monday, following the eruption of a volcano on the Alaska Peninsula.

The eruption was in the Katmai National Monument area, where Mt. Trident, one of a number of active volcanoes in the Valley of 10,000 Smokes, erupted last week.

The most recent eruption was believed to be Mt. Martin, a 6,100-foot volcano south of Mt. Trident.

A coast guard plane was dispatched to investigate.

Allies Back German Bid To Rearm

LONDON (AP)—The supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe has formally supported a West German move to build bigger warships urgently wanted for defence of the Baltic Sea, it was reported Monday.

Allied officials said U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad also has recommended that the Germans be allowed to manufacture electronic mines hitherto banned as an offensive weapon.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Here's another instalment in our family adventure with Indonesian exchange students.

As I wrote before, we had lovely young Lien from Bandung in our house since last September; she was a foreign exchange student.

After they've graduated from high school in whatever community they've been staying, these students are gathered together for a three-week bus trip to see more of the country. During that trip the 30-odd students from various countries who fill one bus form close international friendships and have a wonderful time together. Then follow five days in and around New York, during which each busload is housed in one of the suburban communities around the city.

It was in this way that we got another Indonesian house guest for five days—a boy named Arief, Rachman from Bogor, Java, who had spent the year in a community in New Jersey.

Undisputed Leader

Arief, who emerged as the undisputed leader of his busload of young people, turned out to be just about the most gifted human being I'd ever seen. He entertained my wife and I one night with a series of Indonesian dances, all performed with incredible grace and skill. There was the famous candle dance, miraculously done with a lighted candle on a saucer in each hand, and various forms of dances illustrating the Arjuna legends from the Indian classic epic "Mahabharata," done in Balinese, East Javanese and West Javanese style.

Arief told us that ever since he was 12, he'd gone to a very strict dancing master for four hours of training every day after school. Nevertheless, he doesn't plan on a career as a dancer, but wants to get a Ph.D. in anthropology.

He's also an expert on the ukulele, speaks several languages (among them excellent English) and did very well indeed in his New Jersey high school—aside from bewitching the whole community with his extraordinary charm.

After a community picnic

last night it was Arief—of course—who organized an impromptu program performed by the foreign students.

Hilarious Comedy

There were three young Italians—two boys and a girl—doing a spirited trio; a Japanese boy playing Japanese songs on the mouth organ; a Swedish girl and a German boy in a hilarious comic duo; a Brazilian girl dancing a stylized version of the cha-cha on the grass; a Norwegian girl leading the audience in "the song of the meatball"; a Vietnamese girl singing a plaintive native love song and, last but not least, our Arief astonishing all and sundry with an even more daring version of his candle dance.

Then they all joined together in some American choruses, winding up, with "He's got the whole world in his hands."

All the boys were splendid specimens—I specially remember a blond six-footer from Naples, a Turk, a Luxembourg and a Japanese—and the gathering of Swedish, Danish, French, Italian, Spanish, Malayan, Japanese, Finnish, Norwegian, German, Filipino and Vietnamese girls was practically a Miss Universe contest. All in all, a wonderful evening—the kind of thing that makes you feel good for days and weeks.

King Fisherman

17-Pounder in Lead In Coho Division

New Colonist King Fisherman coho division leader is Douglas Stobo, 1323 Clover, who landed a 17 pound, four ounce coho at McKenzie Bay on a Nosky Killer strip holder at about 8:30 Sunday evening.

He was using a wire line and planer and weighed his catch in at Bud Blackburn's Angler's Boat Rentals at Brentwood. Some big coho have arrived in Saanich Inlet and although Mrs. Fanny Burton's 8.1 pounder was big enough to win top coho prize in the ladder derby fish-off Sunday, Stan Powell, 110 Joseph Street, landed a 12½-pounder later in the day off Willis Point.

Day fishing was fairly hot over the weekend with all type grounds producing and Nahmint Bay the hot spot. Victoria lawyer Jerry Lauder used an Alaskan plug to get a 35.3 pounder at Nahmint and Bob Wright, who was fishing for his fourth King Fisherman crest landed a 33.8 pounder and a 42.8-pounder on a Herring Teaser lure, to almost cinch his fourth crest. Now he has only a coho crest to win to be the first angler to win all five Prince crests.

SEA GIRT, N.J. (UPI) —

Police began shutting down public and private bathing beaches along the New Jersey coast yesterday as the result of an attack by a shark on a 24-year-old man. A navy helicopter was ordered to patrol parts of the shoreline. The shark alert was set off by an attack on John Brodeur, of Jersey City, who suffered a mangled right leg.

Brodeur, who owed his life to his fiancée and a college student who pulled him to shore and to a man who applied - b - tourniquet to his leg, was reported in fair condition.

As a precaution, police chief

C. R. Brown ordered all five public and private beaches closed to bathers pending further notice.

The attack on Brodeur was believed to be the first along the Jersey shore in 39 years.

Little Girl Saved

LONDON (Reuters)—Burly 31-year-old London truck driver Ronald Brace Sunday night saved the life of a four-year-old girl in what was described as a miracle rescue.

Looking out from the balcony of his London apartment Brace saw little Rita Amier hanging from the fourth-floor window of an opposite apartment block.

He ran down four flights of stairs, across a concrete square, leapt over a high wire fence, ran across a garden—and caught the little girl as she fell to the ground.

As Rita tumbled, she hit a third-floor window, cornered, and hit Brace on the chest. He staggered backwards but managed to hold on to the frightened child.

Neighbors watched breathlessly as Brace started his race against death.

Rita escaped with a graze on the side of her cheek—and a few tears.

Kennedy Article Twisted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Saturday Evening Post yesterday accused a Republican party publication of distorting a recent Post article concerning Sen. John F. Kennedy's successful quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Post referred to an article by Stewart Alsop, its national affairs contributing editor. Excerpts appeared in the Republican national committee publication Battle Line.

A Post statement said "The Alsop article was an objective report on how Sen. Jack Kennedy won the Democratic presidential nomination. The Battle Line version of the article contains a number of distortions and quotations out of context."

"One example will suffice. Battle Line by implication attributes to Alsop 'the theory that Joe Kennedy has financed and masterminded his son's drive for the White House as a recompense for his own thwarted presidential ambitions.'"

"Battle Line omitted to add a following sentence from the article: 'The only thing wrong with the mastermind theory is that it simply isn't true.'"

The Post statement said the magazine "is by tradition Republican in editorial outlook, but it believes in objective reporting. In the opinion of its editors the Battle Line version of the Alsop article goes well beyond the accepted rules of the game of political propaganda."

Pistol-Point Capture Followed by Charges

A Victoria man was remanded one week without plea when he appeared in Colwood police court yesterday on two charges—one of uttering a forged document, the other of attempting to do so.

This development followed the man's arrest Saturday after he had been held at pistol-point by the manager of Six-Mile House, who had been warned by police to be on the lookout for two men trying to cash forged money orders.

Cuba Hushes Up Red Envoy's Past

HAVANA (AP)—The new Soviet ambassador to Cuba, Sergei Kudryavtsev, got the red carpet treatment Monday as he presented his credentials.

A Cuban foreign ministry press note about Kudryavtsev detailed his personal history down to the fact that he speaks Spanish, French, English and Italian, but omitted any mention of his diplomatic service in Ottawa, where he was implicated in 1945 in disclosures of a Soviet spy conspiracy.

Cuba Forces Panama Hand

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (Reuters)—Cuba Monday night was reported ready to present an extensive catalogue on instances of alleged shabby treatment of other Latin American nations by the United States as the foreign ministers of American republics meeting here began discussing U.S.-Cuban differences.

If Cuba does this, it would put Panama, for one, in a difficult position. Panama had not intended to bring before the foreign ministers its differences with the United States over several aspects of the Panama Canal's operation.

But Panama now finds itself in a position where if it does not bring up the issue itself, Cuban Foreign Minister Paul Roa will do so in extreme terms.

Roa already has undertaken to prove that the only dangerous intervention in the hemisphere is the alleged U.S. intervention in Cuba.

Request Rejected

Mexico Won't Help Castro's Oilfields

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexico was reported yesterday to have rejected a Fidel Castro request for technical aid in operating U.S. and British oil refineries seized from private owners last month.

Mexico was reported to have told the Cuban premier that the experts from Petroleos Mexicanos, the state oil body, could not be spared now.

(Private reports in New York said Soviet engineers, including a woman, last week inspected the Esso Standard Oil refinery in Havana and "drew plans" of its seventy-five million-dollar, 35,000-barrel-a-day refinery.)

The attempt charge was laid in court yesterday.

The man was also accused of cashing a raised money order earlier Saturday at the View Royal Supermarket.

In Esquimalt court yesterday Kenneth Roy Ross, HMCS Cape Breton, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor—a bottle of beer. The 18-year-old was fined another $25 for throwing a bottle onto the highway.

James Arnold Harkness, Work Point, pleaded guilty in city court to impaired driving. He was fined $250 and remanded a week for a probation report on disposition of his driver's licence.

Accused was arrested Saturday evening after his car was seen weaving in heavy traffic on Johnson Street.

Norman Duncan, 1260 Goldstream, pleaded guilty Friday in city court to a charge of assault causing bodily harm, and was remanded to Monday because the complainant was not in court.

Ottawa Hails Congo Backdown

OTTAWA (CP)—Government leaders Monday welcomed Premier Lumumba's acceptance of the United Nations' rules of the game for the Congo.

They also greeted with satisfaction—tentatively, at least—the Congolese premier's apology to Canada for the attack on Canadian soldiers at Leopoldville airport last week.

Meanwhile, at the United Nations in New York, diplomats expressed belief that developments within the last 24 hours had taken much of the heat out of the Congo crisis.

Relations between Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and representatives of the Congo government continued tense but the Congolese apparently are not ready to jeopardize UN aid by clinging to unacceptable conditions.

Other developments included:

● A resounding victory by Hammarskjöld in Sunday's Security Council debate that gave solid backing for his position despite attacks by the Congo government and the Soviet Union.

● An announcement in Leopoldville that Premier Patrice Lumumba would not press his demands for UN aid in trying to put down the rebellious government of Katanga province. In Katanga the secessionist government of Premier Moïse Tshombe and allies from elsewhere in the Congo called on the Congo army to get rid of Premier Lumumba.

● Assurances that the last

Belgian military units would be out of the Congo within a week. Hammarskjöld said the Congo situation no longer was a threat to international peace.

A Moral Strength

MUCH criticism is being levelled at both the government and the opposition on their attitudes toward Canadian defence. The minister of defence, Mr. Pearson, on the one hand, is being castigated for his continued refusal to publicly reveal whether or not the government will acquire or control nuclear warheads for defence purposes, while on the other, Mr. Lester Pearson is being slated for his insistence that Canada eschew all nuclear weapons.

It is obvious that the moral issues at stake are uppermost in the minds of both sides of the House, for from a practical point of view Canada could arm herself immediately with nuclear weapons from either the United States or Great Britain, or even, in fact, manufacture her own.

Because both our great political parties are taking this line of thought it has given rise to the suggestion that Canada is drifting toward isolationism in defence, leaving herself without the means to defend herself or even fulfil her obligations as a member of NATO.

Consternation is also felt in some quarters in the firm belief that the government does not fully understand Canada's vulnerable position in the event of an all-out war.

It has been left to the minister of external affairs, Mr. Howard Green, to dispel any confusion on this point. In his presentation before the UN disarmament commission last week, he said: "... Canada lies between the two leading nuclear powers—United States and the Soviet Union. We are bound to suffer terribly in a nuclear war and we believe that many other nations would suffer as well, if not by direct destruction then by the effects of fallout."

By steadfastly refusing to be frightened or bullied into becoming a nuclear power Canada has attained a moral strength and the right to leadership of the defenceless millions of people throughout the world. In this position Canada's words before the UN have a force which cannot be denied. If Canada's plea is accepted—and her example, not by words alone, is followed—then any accusation of isolationism must be rejected.

The Mastery of Space

THE mastery of space to the degree of the comic strips may yet be some way off but it is drawing closer nevertheless. It is a measure of the progress being made that it has become almost a commonplace to learn of a new satellite being sent into orbit. And this within the short period of three years since the first Sputnik was launched.

The race is between the two giants of the cold war, the United States and the Soviet Union. These are the only two nations with resources to back the immense expenditures involved. Science in other countries of equal merit, latent or evident, is inhibited because of the cost factor.

Last week saw further breakthroughs in the realm of space achievement. Russia sent two dogs and other smaller animals into orbit and landed them successfully after 18 revolutions around the earth. For its part America caught by plane an ejected capsule after the mother satellite had made 17 global flights. In addition, and as proof of its space technology, the U.S. could claim an orbited balloon used as a reflector for telephonic messages, a manned rocket plane reaching a height of 131,000 feet, and further successful missile launches.

The race for supremacy grows in intensity. On the face of it Russia is leading in space ship experiment, although the U.S. is not far behind. The Soviet Union has sent living creatures into space and recovered them safely. This is patently a close preamble to the launching into space of man himself. And that will not be long now in coming. Russia also manages to send up bigger and heavier satellites into orbit, which indicates a lead in propulsion through a more powerful rocket fuel.

Space is man's last field of endeavor, the earth having disclosed practically all of its secrets through discovery and exploration. It was inevitable that man should cast his eyes upwards and seek to unravel the mysteries of the heavens. It is what he will do with his space triumphs eventually that poses the disturbing question. It is axiomatic that hot war, because of its urgency and freedom of experiment, speeds scientific achievement; it is not so comforting that it is the equivalent impulse of the cold war that is the driving force of space exploration.

When, as seems likely in the near future, man has mastered space to the extent he can roam its reaches with safety, what then? Will he use this new dominance for peace or for its opposite?

The Canadian Southwest

PREMIER Bennett thinks that calling this geographic region the "Pacific Northwest" is bad psychology; and he is probably right.

It may help to explain why so many United States visitors expect to find snow and ice here and, if devotees of winter sports, are disappointed when they don't.

But even more harmful to the tourist trade, the implication of the word Northwest could deter people in search of a mild climate from coming this way. One needs to be a fairly rugged individual to be attracted by the imagined rigors of a holiday in a region whose loose description is apt to be associated with physical hardship.

The area embraced by the name Pacific Northwest includes part of the state of Washington and of the B.C. mainland. It is also known as the Evergreen Playground—which, besides exaggerating the attractions of what can be a wet and miserable winter season, fails to identify the geographic location of the region.

Since this particular area obviously couldn't call itself the Pacific Southwest, it looks as if a change of name would entail separation from the century-old link with northern Washington—which from the point of view of tourist trade competition might not be such a bad idea anyhow.

So how about "Canadian Southwest"? That would be geographically accurate and would convey a picture more in keeping with the characteristics of this part of the Dominion.

The change could be made without expense or much effort if all tourist organizations and resort owners advertising in other parts of Canada and the United States dropped references to the Pacific Northwest and substituted the less forbidding title, "Come to the Canadian Southwest" should have a lot more appeal.

In the Senate

English into French, etc.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA—Senators are determined to keep up with the Joneses—that is, the Commons. They are going to have their own instantaneous translation system.

When a senator is speaking in English his words will be swiftly translated by a man or woman in a booth and the non-English speaking senator, using an ear-phone, will get it in French. And vice versa.

That's just great. Probably there is not a single member of the Senate who does not understand English just as well as any of his non-French speaking English colleagues.

And for the latter, there is so little French spoken in the Senate (and no practical need for any to be spoken) that they can easily wait for the printed translation.

That's what Senator Ralph Horner told his colleagues, along with some other comments he made as the sole member of the Red Chamber to oppose this new expense.

Senator John Higgins of Newfoundland approved the new idea, but did say something to the point, that most French-speaking senators also spoke English—and more clearly and understandably than their English-speaking colleagues.

The proposal to keep up with the Commons, who have had the system several years, came from a committee headed by Senate Speaker Mark Drouin. It won't cost much, perhaps $25,000 a year—which is nothing compared with the six-and-a-half billion annual spending bill the senators rubber-stamped with scarcely a murmur a few days later.

But it should be reported that in the Senate's 87 sittings of the session just ended, French was spoken during less than a dozen of them and the whole volume would be scarcely 25,000 words.

In the Commons French is spoken in probably three sittings out of four, and probably 10 per cent of the Hansard wordage, at least, is in French.

"Do you think Lumumba is ready for self-government yet?"

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THESE words of an old-time essay caused me to pause, with encouragement.

"The trouble with the world is that it is always growing." Growing pains, as it were.

Here, maybe, is the answer to all our worries. It might seem that by this time the world should have no more new growth to uncover, but the process obviously goes on for ever.

A pleasing thought nevertheless. It invites the conclusion that we shan't blow ourselves up after all. If you are aiming to build a fall-out shelter, however, don't let this dissuade you. Play it safe.

Another term for growing pains is evolution, or colloquially speaking, muddling through. Evolution means change and since it is constant the pattern alters continuously.

There are days when it would help if nature followed suit, a la the habit of dandelions. What's dandy about them anyway, by the way.

The Medes and Persians must have nourished this lovely flower for export. Or some other ancient horticulturist at least.

Progress then is the handmaiden of growing pains, or vice versa; if doesn't matter much. The worries we think of as new, calamitous, beyond bearing—excepting perhaps the split atom—are as old as man. The form in which they appear has changed, that's all.

There is a chance therefore for the old world yet. Hiroshima need not be a Rubicon.

On the other hand the same essayist once wrote about monkeying; not meaning animals playing tag among the trees but the human bent for poking into things. And he had never heard of a Sputnik.

Monkeying stems from curiosity, as the little boy who strips a new toy illustrates. Not without cause there has been wonder in recent years we, the human world, haven't become a bit too curious.

One can perhaps emulate the monkey too far.

However, there may be a saving grace in this idea of growing pains. If man has evolved, muddling through the centuries and all the tortuous perils of his own creation, and reached this era of 1960 A.D. still alive and kicking, as he certainly has—perhaps it's foolish to think his valedictory is just around the corner.

Of course man in the abstract and man in the particular are not quite the same thing. One can be philosophic about the former while being in a frightful stew about the latter.

Especially if the latter be oneself. However, the one terrible bridge that haunts society may never have to be crossed.

We shall muddle through, evolve, live in a constant flux, but keep going. The pains are simply the signs of our growth.

So, anyway, the past seems to indicate.

Remember that one rusts if one stands still, as the unkind Rip Van Winkles say of Victoria, their growing pains being allayed by paralysis of the mind. It is a pity that growth must be so beligerent, but the lesson of history is not fatal.

Evolution can be aided by a leaven of amity and good will. These are never amiss at any time anywhere. The growth could then be a little less painful.

But I fancy that we'll muddle through in safety, as usual. Although I admit that's more of a hope than a fancy.

Reports from Ottawa

IN a nuclear war what is the value of your survival, and mine?

Well, one way of measuring our value might be a check on the extent of consideration that Parliament gave to civil defence. On the last day of the seven-months' session there were three speeches on civil defence. Short ones. And the third was among the most fatuous I have ever heard in my 18 years of covering the House of Commons.

Another measure might be the amount of money being spent on civil defence: $37,000,000 out of a total budget of $6,000,000,000.

A third indicator of our value might be the stature, in the hierarchy of government, of the organization responsible for civil defence. All important fields of governmental responsibility have a department and a responsible minister. Even forestry, which is much more a provincial than a federal responsibility, is to become the charge of a new federal department recently authorized by Parliament, with a responsible minister.

The survival of the citizenry in a nuclear war might be assumed to be as important as the growing and harvesting of trees. But there is no department of civil defence. Only an adjunct to the prime minister's office called the Emergency Measures Organization.

On this point, in one of the non-fatuous speeches, Liberal leader Pearson said this:

"... There should be much greater centralization than there is at present... the responsibility for this vital matter is spread over too many departments... there must be one single central authority, and as I understand it now there is no such single authority. If I am wrong, the prime minister will correct me."

In the other non-fatuous speech, Prime Minister Diefenbaker simply restated the situation that responsibility and authority are divided among "the prime minister or acting prime minister, and with him the other key ministers... the federal civilian group and the army group... in each regional centre a senior representative of the federal government (with) full authority to act on behalf of the federal government (and) army commanders exercising their authority over military operations but subject at all times to the direction of the government."

But no single, full-time, responsible minister.

In the third speech on civil defence, government supporter Laurier Regnier of St. Boniface, Man., voiced these thoughts:

"I think we should avoid casualties."

"I think we can take the sting out of the bomb if we organize properly for civil defence."

"I think a nation that knew we were organized to survive might hesitate to declare war on Canada."

But even Tory Regnier, advocating construction of a million bomb shelters with the government paying half the costs, does not seem convinced that the $37,000,000 being provided for civil defence will buy enough bomb de-stinger.

Neither do I. In civil defence, as in military defence, the government marked time while gambling that disarmament talks would pay off. At the United Nations in New York it is now making a desperate — perhaps last desperate effort to get the talks going again. Meanwhile the hold-down on defence spending, civil and otherwise, is staying on.

Straight Razor Days

By GREGORY CLARK

IN the parlor car washroom in the morning I was impressed to see all my fellow passengers, both young and old, slathering onto their chins a little do-it-yourself lather, squeezed from a tube, and then shaving with the utmost aplomb.

There may still be a few men somewhere in the world, though I haven't seen one in years, who still shaves with the old straight razor. Indeed, I still see straight razors for sale in the shops, though probably for barbers mostly. Yet come to think of it, it is a long time since I have seen anybody getting shaved in a barber shop. The main use of the straight razor now appears to be to daintily finish off a haircut around the ears and the back of the neck.

But there was a time well within the memory of the living when the barber shop was busy all day long, mostly with shaves. In the morning gentlemen who hadn't even washed yet arrived sleepily for their morning wake-up, had steamy hot towels wrapped around their jaws, great hot lathers of soap from a mug worked up two inches thick, and then were shaved by the singing razor of the dandified barber who made a ballet out of a shave.

It could be men's whiskers were rougher, tougher obstacles than they are in this soft effete era.

No Longer 'New'

(From The Toronto Telegram)

METRO's apartment construction strike was less an ordinary row between management and labor than a phase of the struggle of immigrant workers to graduate from second to first-class citizenship.

Dawn-to-dusk and Saturday non-union work by immigrants, mostly Italians, has prevailed too long amid Metro's rising apartment towers. Wages have been low, and overtime at straight rates instead of time-and-a-half. Thus this strike was not the usual bread-and-butter dispute of union and management, but was primarily a battle for the right of immigrant workers to enjoy a union contract.

Under contracts to end the strike, it is expected that about 5,000 new members, mainly bricklayers and laborers, will for the first time have the benefits of union wages and conditions.

So, having contributed their sweat and skills to the prosperity of their adopted lands, they will be able at last to share in that prosperity. Just as important, their victory proves them to be no longer immigrants or "new" Canadians — but Canadians.

U.S. Politics

Policies on Arms Control

By MARQUEE CHILDS

IN this pre-campaign interval, Sen. John F. Kennedy and his team are, with characteristic thoroughness, touching every base. The candidate and his strategy board know how important organization can be in a close race and they are working hard to repair any damage done by the factional fighting at the Democratic convention in Los Angeles.

This involves issues as well as personalities. It means enlisting for the big struggle those on the liberal-left whose ardor for the triumph of convictions and causes is at least as great as the simple desire of the office-holder to win. One such is Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who not only contested the nomination in primaries in Wisconsin and West Virginia but at Los Angeles got himself crosswise of the Kennedy flanking movement.

Now, however, the two have sat down together, and Humphrey says he is happy about the stand the presidential candidate will take on the issue that means most to him. Humphrey is chairman of a Senate disarmament subcommittee, and more than anyone on either side of the aisle he has applied himself to the complex problem of arms control and the effort to put an end under a strict inspection-control system to nuclear testing.

As a result of their talk, Humphrey is convinced that Kennedy will take a strong stand for continuing the nuclear test negotiations in Geneva so long as there is the slightest hope of coming to an agreement with the Soviets.

The candidate will also call for a greatly expanded program of research into improved means for inspecting and controlling not only nuclear tests, but various disarmament measures. He will call, too, for some kind of peace agency that will work for all these goals with the essential resources of men and money. In short, peace would no longer be a sort of poor stepchild pushed about from one department to another.

But if the expectation was that nuclear testing would become a partisan issue in the campaign, Vice-President Nixon provided a quick antidote. In response to a question put to him in Maine, he said that he believed testing should not be resumed so long as there was a chance for success in the Geneva talks.

For those who see in the steady worsening of East-West relations a drift from cold war to eventual hot war, this will be welcome. In this political interval, it may not be possible for the Eisenhower administration to take any steps that might help to get Geneva talks off dead centre. But so long as the negotiations go on, hope remains.

The whole matter is just now in a perplexing, frustrating grey zone. The Soviets have made some proposals—15 control stations on their territory, three on-site inspections—that indicate a desire to continue bargaining. But the Americans complain that they have rejected the scientific basis for research into further detection methods on wholly political grounds and they attribute the stalemate primarily thereto.

This has been a signal for the advocates of testing to start a renewed drive. Edward Teller, the physicist who played a leading part in developing the hydrogen bomb and who has become perhaps the chief protagonist of more tests and more powerful weapons, is writing a series of articles that argue that progress can be achieved only through actual testing. With chairman John McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission, he has exerted a major influence behind the scenes to end the present situation which, they insist, is in effect a moratorium without inspection and control.

Both sides in the dispute have become emotionally involved. Unquestionably, further tests could reduce the size of nuclear warheads and therefore step up the ratio of explosive power to rocket thrust. While McCone is reported to argue that the Soviets are now secretly testing, in a letter to Humphrey he said he had no evidence of it.

What this ignores, as the other side sees it, is that the explosive power per rocket would be at the cost of permitting other nations to develop their own nuclear weapons. And while there is still a chance to achieve international control, it should not be sacrificed for a more powerful deterrent, and especially when that deterrent is claimed to be two or three times more than enough to do the job of retaliatory destruction.

The ultimate decision is obviously one that, with so many others, will be waiting for the new president to take next year. But a great many voters will listen for a clue as to how each candidate will meet it.

Parliamentary Profile

'Most Improbable' CCFer Outfoxed Labor Champions

(Eighth of a Series)

OTTAWA (TNS)—The man who turned the tables on the political strategists of the labor wing of the New Party is a most improbable Socialist from Saskatchewan.

Hazen Argue is only 39 years of age. But he is already a veteran of Parliament. He started his political career the same year he got married, by winning the Assiniboia constituency. If Napoleon's grenadiers each carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack, each CCFer who is able to win a seat in Parliament is a potential leader of his party.

SMOKE CLEARED
When the smoke cleared after the 1958 general election, only one CCF member was returned from Saskatchewan, cradle of the CCF. That loner was Hazen Argue. He became parliamentary leader of his party, voice of the CCF from its wilderness.

Back in 1945, Mr. Argue was only 24 years of age when he became member for Assiniboia. A college graduate, owner of a fine wheat farm, he is the image of the rich young westerner rather than the ragged, impoverished farmer.

TOO SOON
As a parliamentary figure, Hazen Argue suffers from having succeeded too soon. He has not been able to develop the magnetic personality that is needed for the TV age of politics, nor the power of persuasion that counts in the House of Commons or on the hustings. His speeches are dull, uninteresting, even whining at times.

EXPENDABLE
Argue was regarded as easily expendable when strategists of the new CLC-CCF party—which calls itself the New Party in its literature—made plans for the recent national convention of the CCF in Regina. They would abolish the post of CCF national leader, which has been held by two parliamentary giants, J. S. Woodsworth and M. J. Coldwell. They would pigeon-hole Mr. Argue with a new label—official House leader of the CCF. They would leave the way open for the New Party to pick an aggressive Labor man as its leader next year.

This was the plan evolved by David Lewis, national chairman of CCF, Stanley Knowles, vice-president of Canadian Congress of Labor, and others.

It would probably have brought Mr. Knowles the call to head the New Party. Or possibly Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan.

But planning in the smoke-filled Ottawa rooms of the New Party backfired in the bright sunshine of Regina. Boisterous farm delegates defied the party executive and railroaded Hazen Argue into the national leader's chair, just vacated by ailing Coldwell.

MEASURE OF RESPECT
This unexpected triumph will bring Mr. Argue a measure of respect in the House of Commons. But there are omens of disaster in it for the New Party. Hazen Argue is a victim of the great divergence between organized farmers and organized labor, which cannot be cured by a shot-gun wedding at a political convention. He is a victim, moreover, of the decline of Socialism as an effective political force.

Based on generous borrowing of British Labor Party ideas the CCF started out with high hopes on a program of reform and social reorganization designed to remedy the ills exposed by the Great Depression. Its program has gradually emptied of valid propositions, and new generations of voters have turned to new aims.

CROWDED LIBERALS
Moreover, the spectacular revival of the Conservative Party under John Diefenbaker, which crowded the Liberals off the centre of the stage, crowded the CCF even more tightly into a corner.

The left wing of Canadian politics could still provide great parliamentary figures. It could even lead on to power and the responsibility of office. But nothing of the kind is promised by the CCF in its present eclipse.

Turncoat Slaps U.S.

LONDON (Reuters) — A Polish-born American intelligence sergeant who left his family to defect to the Communist bloc Monday night condemned American government policy as "blackmail, provocation and hypocrisy," the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Sgt. Vladimir Sloboda, 33, published the denunciation of alleged United States activities in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, Tass reported.
Sloboda, who became an American citizen two years ago, vanished Aug. 3 from the 513 military intelligence group at Frankfurt, West Germany, where he was a linguist and clerk. The army said Aug. 6 he had "limited access" to security information.

His 29-year-old British wife Lillian, mother of their three children, said there had been no family arguments "but the money situation has been pretty bad."

Dishonest Canadians figure out many ingenious ways to get paid for not working. Read of the headaches they give our busy band of 75 U.I.C. enforcement officers, in this week's big Star Weekly, on sale now.

Under the Liberal plan for eliminating the school cost burden from homeowners and farmers, Mr. Edgelow pointed out, no part of the tax dollar would have been taken for school purposes.

He told the meeting that the plan for the provincial government to assume full school costs would be financed from three sources: the $22,000,000 a year which the province saves in interest and carrying charges on direct debts which have been wiped out, a $21,000,000 federal hospital grant which the Liberals claim has not been passed on by the province, and greater efficiency in government administration.

Mr. Edgelow, who shared the platform with fellow-Liberals George Gregory and Forrest L. Shaw, also charged that municipalities are being penalized by the province because provincial grants are no longer made in one lump sum.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams ordered a state investigation in addition to a probe by the Wayne county prosecutor's office.

Tall said he was beaten and thrown out of the bar when he went to a telephone booth to call the police after the bartender refused to serve him.

Socreds Chief Target

Tories Open Fire On Other Parties

Progressive Conservative guns opened fire on all three other parties last night at the first public meeting of the PC election campaign in Victoria.

Social Credit was the chief target at the meeting in the War Amps Hall, addressed by candidates Clive Campbell, T. H. Cressy and Maj. Gen. C. A. P. Murison.

"The truth of the matter is that the Socreds are only interested in things that make a show," said Gen. Murison. "Sick people waiting to get into hospital, children in overcrowded schoolrooms, retarded children getting no training of any kind—these don't show," he said. "Handouts to homeowners show. But the fact that these same homeowners are overtaxed to pay for provincial services doesn't show."

"Arrogance, conceit and complacency," he said, had become outstanding characteristics of the Social Credit government, which had initiated "very little that is new" but had built on sure foundations laid by its predecessors.

CCF policy, he said, "is essentially the policy of the British Labor government that in a few short years brought Great Britain nearer to the verge of economic disaster than Hitler with his bombs and submarines ever did."

And the Liberals—"The Liberals have swung so far to the left that in comparison with the CCF they might be described as a 'me too' party with a second-hand policy. Indeed, about the only discernible difference is that whereas the CCF goes flat out for state ownership and complete government control the Liberals temporize on free enterprise with unlimited government interference."

Socreds 'Diverted' Funds for Jobless

Victoria CCF candidate Mrs. May Campbell told an election rally last night that in the past two years when thousands were jobless the Social Credit government diverted over $24,000,000 allocated for employment-creating projects.

"Where did the money go?" said Mrs. Campbell. "We have the answer in the Public Accounts for 1959 and 1960 which show that $30,906,999 went into debt reduction."

"So, it was far more important to the Social Credit government to create a big show by reducing debt, than it was to provide employment for the people of this province."

The speaker said the unspent monies over the two-year period were allocated for the Trans-Canada Highway, road, bridge and ferry work.

Also speaking at the meeting was former CCF member of parliament for Regina Claude Ellis who is in Victoria with his family on vacation.

Mr. Ellis said the only party in the recent Saskatchewan provincial election to campaign actively against the CCF medical care plan was Social Credit.

Richard III Remembered, Championed

NEW YORK (AP)—This "in memoriam" notice appeared in yesterday's New York Times:

"Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York and King of England, who died in battle on this date at Bosworth, A.D. 1485. Founder of the College of Arms, patron of Caxton, of Cambridge University and a great benefactor of the church."

The notice was paid for by C. Dewar Simons, a former teacher and a New York member of the Fellowship of the White Boar, a British society dedicated to clearing King Richard III's name.

The group says historians and Shakespeare have maligned the king by accusing him of the murder of two young princes in the Tower of London and other killings and crimes.

Shakespeare's "Richard III," says Simons, is a "base calumny" but good literature nevertheless.

100-Year-Old Notes Uncovered in Arctic

AXEL HEIBERG ISLAND, N.W.T. (CP)—Two notes more than 100 years old, left in the Arctic by Sir Edward Belcher, have been uncovered on nearby Devon Island.

Two oil company geologists, George DeMille and R. A. Rudkin, both of Calgary, found the notes in cairns along Grinnell Peninsula, 80 miles south of Axel Heiberg.

The geologists are exploring Axel Heiberg and other

Arctic islands. Axel Heiberg is 600 miles south of the north pole.

Rudkin said both notes were dated in the summer of 1853 when Sir Edward commanded an expedition to the Arctic searching for the missing Sir John Franklin party.

The first note was found in a cairn flattened by frost and wolves at Point Diarrell, the northwest extremity of Devon Island.

It was a printed Arctic form with handwriting in ink along the margins.

It said Belcher had erected two monuments for surveying purposes and was leaving a cache of supplies. The note warned his men not to touch the cache.

The second note was found farther south at Point Hogarth. It was a short note in pencil on finer paper and said that Belcher, while sailing by, had spotted what he thought was a cairn but what turned out to be a natural rock formation.

- Yearly dividend grant of $50 to every homeowner to help pay municipal taxes. B.C. is the only place in the world where such a grant is made.
- Largest highways and bridges construction program in Canada — more than $500 million spent in eight years.
- Elimination of the public debt. The money saved is now spent for the development of B.C.
- Most progressive labor legislation in Canada — new acts safeguard rights of all citizens.
- Largest railway expansion on the continent — the P.G.E. is the most important single factor in the progressive development of interior and northern B.C.
- The most modern ferry service in North America between the B.C. mainland and Vancouver Island.
- Canada's largest power development program, to make B.C. the most electrified province.
- Encouragement of new industries to provide thousands of new jobs and greater opportunities for everyone.
- Increased aid to municipalities to help pay for local services.
- Protection of forest jobs through farsighted policies which place forests on sustained yield basis, plus increased programs of reforestation and fire prevention.
- Increased assistance to vital farming industry through consumer publicity campaign, land clearance program, control of disease and soil survey, drainage and grain programs.
- Expansion of recreation facilities by B.C.'s unique Department of Recreation and Conservation.

Rewards Perfect For Top Winners

Merv Campbell and Mrs. Helen Moss were the two top winners in the Victoria-Saanich Anglers' Association Ladder Derby Sunday, and both agreed their prizes couldn't be better.

Campbell, a new father, was given his choice between a week's vacation at Laguna Beach, Calif., and $500 cash. Considering the expenses surrounding arrival of his new son, Merv took the $500 for his 24-pound, 10-ounce spring.

Mrs. Moss won a sewing machine with her 20-pound, 12-ounce spring, and Mr. Moss testified that "the one she has was ready to go, and she's been talking about a new one for months."

Both fish were caught in McKenzie Bay. Campbell got his at 7:30 a.m. on a herring trawler and Mrs. Moss caught hers at 12:45 on a Super-Strip Trawler.

Campbell almost didn't get to fish at all. When he arrived

Fleming Rallies Lions With Brilliant Display

CALGARY—Picked up by a tremendous second-half performance by Willie Fleming, British Columbia Lions came smashing from behind Monday night to defeat Calgary's scrappy Stampede, 26-19, in a bitterly-fought Western Inter-Provincial Football Union game which meant a lot to both clubs.

Victory, second in three days for the Lions, pushed the B.C. club into a second-place tie with Edmonton Eskimos and left Stampede sharing fourth place with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Fleming, sophomore half-back speedster from the University of Iowa, put on a spectacular show. He scored the first B.C. touchdown on a 52-yard sprint down the side lines, the last touchdown on a short dash around end and in between came up with other heroics which literally lifted the Lions from a beaten club to winners.

After Fleming's big run had given Lions a 6-0 lead in the early minutes of the first quarter, the B.C. team gradually went into decline as fumbles and costly penalties enabled Stampede to march into a 19-6 lead.

A pass interception by Harvey Wyllie on the Calgary 48 started the first Stampede touchdown march. Fullback Earl Lunsford ate up 43 yards in three carries and quarterback Joe Kapp got the last six yards on a pass to end Bill Barber. Doug Brown converted and the Lions trailed, 7-6.

Then Bob Jeter, who was hurt and missed the second half, took off on a 51-yard run which took Lions to the Calgary 16. But he fumbled, the Stampede recovered. A few minutes later with Lions back to the Calgary 34, quarterback Earl Kéley fumbled and the Stampede, aided by two penalties, made it 10-6 on a field goal by Brown.

Ron Morris kicked for one point to make it 11-6 at half-time. In the third quarter, another penalty retained possession for Stampede when they had been forced to punt, and Kapp passed to Ernie Warlick for 10 and Gene Filipiak for 60 and six yards for another touchdown. Brown converted, it was 19-6 when Morris booted another long single, and the Lions were a beaten club.

BUT NOT TO WILLIE

There, with the play on the B.C. 25, Fleming took over. He raced 42 yards to the Calgary 43. After Vern Lofstrom and Jim Jones went for five and four yards, Fleming took off again for 24 yards to the Calgary 10. Lofstrom went two, quarterback Randy Duncan got seven after being trapped, and Lofstrom went over. Kristopaitis converted and it was 13-19.

Inspired, the Lions threw Kapp for a 20-yard loss and the Stampede punted on the last play of the third quarter to take advantage of the stiff breeze.

Lions started on their own 48. Fullback Nub Beamer, replacing the benched Don Vic, plucked the downed two, placed the ball on two yards. Duncan passed to Jones for 10, Jones got the last two yards for the tying touchdown. Kristopaitis converted for the winning point.

But Fleming wasn't through. Lions got the ball on the 55. Beamer made five, then took a pass from Fleming for 30 yards to the Calgary 20. Lofstrom and Beamer got it to the two with four plunges and with the Stampede massed for a plunge, Fleming went around end.

Stamps blocked the convert try, and came within an eye of tying it as Wyllie got them started with a kick-off return which carried play to the B.C. nine-yard line. But Kapp was thrown for a 15-yard loss.

Prison sentences totalling 11½ years have been imposed on four Russian soccer fans who broke up an important game in Moscow last month, Moscow radio reports. The four rushed onto the field drunk, waved bottles and chased the referees from the field. Two of the men have been banned from Moscow for five years.

Losing Margin Shows Pirates Not Yet Safe

Major league baseball standings show that Pittsburgh Pirates, sporting a 6½-game lead, are in no immediate danger in the National League and that New York Yankees are being hard-pressed by Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles.

In a sense it's quite correct but a second look shows that the Pirates may be little bet-couldn't hit and were beaten, 2-0, by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ernie Broglio, who was helped late by Lindy McDaniel, got credit for his 15th win. Sandy Koufax was the hard-luck loser.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Glen Lake is now open for fishing. Recreation Minister Earle Westwood made the welcome announcement yesterday and anglers will now have the opportunity to catch some of those 1,250 rainbow trout which were released June 28 at six to eight inches in length.

Glen Lake was formerly a bass lake, but last August as part of the fish and game branch rehabilitation program, all bass, carp, sunfish and stickleback were killed. Some sunfish and sticklebacks which escaped up-stream during the rehabilitation program have found their way back into Glen Lake.

Fishing will remain largely for Glen Lake residents. There is no properly-cleared public access where boats may be launched.

A big bore practice shoot held by the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association at Hea's Range Sunday proved to many members that published ballistics on many rifles at excessive ranges are completely inaccurate. Garry Williams and Neil Cave, who arranged the shoot, said yesterday. At long distances most rifles shoot low.

The practice shoot was the first ever held by the club and Williams said it showed quite conclusively that hunters are not likely to score a hit on a deer at anything over 200 yards with bush guns or anything over 300 yards for high velocity rifles.

"It proved to us that it would not be sporting to shoot at greater distances, because a deer may be wounded but not killed outright. At those distances we couldn't be sure of a clean merciful kill," Williams said.

Kill area for a deer is an 18-inch circle behind the shoulder but at long distances 25 per cent of the shooters—and they were among the island's most experienced sportsmen—missed the four-foot targets completely on Sunday. At 100 yards most had fairly good grouping.

Some 40 hunters turned out for the shoot and competition winners in the bush rifle class were Al Howard, Peter Herberston and Cliff Eate, and in the high velocity class George Klassen, Garry Williams and Bill Jones.

The Victoria Gun Club is also getting ready for next month's hunting season opener and will hold a practice ham and bacon shoot at its Metehosin Road grounds Sunday, with the three electric traps and a skeet field opening at 10 a.m. There will be classes for novices and all classifications. Guns, ammunition and refreshments will be available at the clubhouse.

Rain last week drove up-Island campers home by the hundreds and may threaten what was heading for a record camping and vacation year on Vancouver Island.

Up to last week the Campbell River area had experienced a 40 per cent increase in both trailer and tenting campers and resort business was up 15 per cent.

Allan Maclean of Campbell River reports that up to the end of July fishery figures show 9,025 coho and 1,022 spring salmon had been landed by sport fishermen in the Campbell River area. Tyee salmon fishing is 50 per cent better than last year and up to the middle of last week 69 tyee, averaging 40 pounds, had been weighed-in at Painter's Lodge.

Final accounting has not yet been completed, but Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association secretary-treasurer Bill Hoskyn expects that the big Saanich Inlet ladder derby will have lost money for the second year in a row.

"We will have to take a new look at the derby at the January annual meeting," said association president Dick James. Only 344 of the 400 qualified anglers fished in the final fish-off Sunday for better than $1,700 in prizes.

Test Hopes Ended For South Africa

LONDON (Reuters)—A morale-shattering opening partnership of 290 by Geoff Pullar (175) and Colin Cowdrey (115) checked South African hopes of their only victory in the series on the fourth day of the fifth cricket Test yesterday.

With one day left for play, England led by 116 runs with six second-innings wickets in hand. At the close they were 380 for four, having scored 135 in their first innings, to which South Africa replied with 413. South Africa lost the first three Tests and drew the fourth.

Cowdrey and Pullar's 260-minute stand was the best first-wicket partnership by an England pair in England since the war, beating the 212 by Reg Simpson and Cyril Washbrook against the West Indies in 1950.

Saanich, City Teams Divide Boxla Finals

Saanich and Victoria teams clashed twice yesterday in the final games of the city minor lacrosse season, and both came away with a city championship.

Dennis Sproule scored six goals and Bob Handyside added five to lead Saanich Farmers to a 17-12 win over Victoria City that gave them the midwest best-of-five final series, 3-1. Then Kelly Jones and Allan Mottishaw got five goals each in a 10-3 win for City and a 3-1 decision in the best-of-five flyweight series.

On Sunday, Victoria midwest all-stars won the Vancouver Island championship with a 22-3 win over Nanaimo. Score in the two-game, total-goal series was 42-4.

News from Rome

Brundage Remains in Olympic Saddle

ROME—Avery Brundage, the white-haired, pink-cheeked president of the International Olympic Committee who always seems to be in trouble with someone, has apparently won another battle.

It had been reported that there was every chance that Brundage might be ousted this year with Russia and her satellites spearheading a drive to elect Britain's Lord Burghley to take over for the Chicago millionaire. However, Chancellor Otto

Mayer announced yesterday that "Mr. Brundage will be elected tomorrow."

"Everybody is agreed on having Mr. Brundage continue as president. The vote will be a mere formality," Mayer stated flatly.

His announcement followed an early evening session of the IOC and there was no reason to believe anything but that Brundage had won another back-room battle.

Nationalist China has lost its battle to be recognized as China for the Olympic Games and will continue to be known as Taiwan.

Jeff Farrell, the U.S. swim star who almost missed the games because of an appendectomy eight days before the trials, will compete in the 400-yards freestyle relay. He did it in a 100-yards elimination race in which he equalled the world record of 54.6 seconds.

Another U.S. gold-medal hope, Wilma Rudolph, demonstrated her readiness with an 11.1 seconds clocking for the women's 100 metres. It clipped two-tenths of a second off the recognized world record.

For the first time ever a Negro will carry the U.S. flag in the Olympic parade. The honor was given to Easer Johnson, the world record-holder in the decathlon who is recognized by most as the greatest all-around athlete in the world.

Harry Jerome, the Vancouver sprinter who is probably Canada's main hope for a gold medal, says that experience rather than speed may decide the winner of the 100 metres. picks Ray Norton of the United States.

British officials are up in arms over reports that two nations plan to protest that a member of the team is really a man. "There is no doubt in my mind that our girls are all girls," said Jack Crump, secretary of the British AAA.

Canadian athletes and team officials are upset over an edict that they will be sent

Jesse Owens 'Too Late'

ROME (AP)—The great Jesse Owens, who won four Gold Medals for the United States at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, can't get into the Rome Olympics as a reporter.

The one-time star, however, is getting a warm welcome.

Owens' application for accreditation as a reporter for Ebony, an American magazine, was turned down.

"Too late," said a spokesman for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

home in relays within a few days after their events are completed. They want to remain until the games end on Sept. 12.

Stuart Mackenzie, Australia's great sculler, has been withdrawn from the Games for medical reasons—anaemia and other complications.

Canada probably won't lead in many events but her girl athletes have the biggest wardrobe at the Olympics—four complete outfits.

Korean athletes are happy at last. They began cooking their own rice Sunday. What is being served at the Olympic Village restaurant "just didn't suit us at all."

South Africa will be banned from the International Soccer

Organization unless it changes its racial practices, which now bans mixed teams of whites and Negroes.

Judo will be made an optional sport for the 1964 Olympic Games in Japan.

England has been awarded the 1966 World Cup soccer tournament, getting 34 votes to 27 for Germany in International Football Association voting.

Passmore Plan Rejected

Civic Centre Vote Denied in Saanich

To Labor Council

Sharp Reply Sent Back By Esquimalt

Esquimalt council last night gave a tart reply to a letter from Victoria Labor Council urging full participation in the coming winter employment campaign.

Coun. G. K. Sammon said the labor council should be informed that Esquimalt in the past has taken "greater advantage" of the winter work program than any other municipality of comparable size in B.C.

"We don't need any labor council to tell us to take advantage of the program," said Mr. Sammon.

BACKED IN STAND

He was backed in his stand by other members of the council.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele told council he was "extremely gratified" by the 46.62 per cent turnout of ratepayers for the recent $400,000 ice rink-sports arena bylaw vote.

Municipal clerk J. W. Allan said he timed voters entering the polling station "and those who didn't stop to chat were on their way out again in one minute flat." He said in this short space they had given their names to the deputy returning officer, got a ballot, marked it and cast their vote.

Mr. Allan said arrangements at polling stations are under constant revision in an effort to "speed up the process so that people will not find it inconvenient to come and vote."

Council gave permission for a sound truck giving an election message to operate in the municipality from 9 to 6 on Thursday and Friday. The decision was made over objections of Coun. Edward de Costa, who said he was sure "people didn't appreciate the nuisance value" of blaring loudspeakers.

BRYANT ABSTAINS

Coun. James Bryant, who is running in the election for the Conservatives, abstained.

Council also decided to turn down a request for playing time for officer-cadets of HMCS Venture on the sports fields at Bullen Park. The reason given was that improvements will be carried out to the park this winter.

Sale of a 200-foot-square piece of property between the E & N tracks and Devonshire Road was held up until the property committee had studied a B.C. Electric price offer of $7,000. It wants the property for a power line right of way.

Area's First Mall Likely in Saanich

Saanich will probably get the first shopping mall to be built in Greater Victoria.

A mall, 50 feet wide and about 200 feet long, is one feature of the $2,500,000 integrated shopping centre being built on the site of the old Saanich municipal yard, near the intersection of Douglas Street and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Although city ratepayers recently rejected city council's scheme to construct a parking facility and mall on View Street, a mall is included in the plans for an integrated shopping centre to be built on Millside Avenue, near Shelbourne Street.

Preliminary construction work has already been started on the Saanich shopping centre.

Plans for the first stages of the development were approved by Saanich council last night, subject to satisfactory landscaping plans being submitted.

Initial development will be about 25 stores with a total floor space of some 87,000 square feet. Parking space will be provided for more than 450 cars.

Plans submitted to the council indicate that Woolworths and Safeway will occupy the two largest stores with a third large area taken up with a bowling alley. Other types of stores included in the plans are:

Three shoe stores, fuel, paint, women's clothes, bank, appliances, ice cream, barber, beauty salon, drug store, real estate office, hardware, sporting goods, bakery, candy and a camera store.

Two traffic access routes are provided for Douglas Street, two for Seymour Road and one off Saanich Road.

A six-block series of malls along Broad Street in Victoria has been suggested by the retail trade group of the Chamber of Commerce.

Saanich Won't Rezone For Big Phone Centre

Application by the B.C. Telephone Company to have land at the junction of Vernon Avenue and Douglas Street rezoned to allow construction of a $300,000 administrative and service centre was rejected by Saanich council last night.

The application was opposed at the meeting by a petition from about 20 residents of Coun. Leslie Passmore failed last night in an attempt to have Saanich council's $1,000,000 civic centre plan submitted to ratepayers in December for approval or rejection.

Fighting along, against the rest of the council, Coun. Passmore had moved that a plebiscite should be held into the question in December. Coun. George Austin seconded the motion only to throw the proposal open for discussion.

ONLY PERSON

In the voting which followed discussion, Coun. Passmore was the only person who voted in favor of the motion. All other councillors and Reeve George Chatterton opposed him.

The proposed civic centre would be situated on 33 acres of land between Douglas Street and the western shore of Swan Lake, just north of the city border.

Council has bought outright six acres of land fronting onto Douglas Street, and is expropriating a further eight acres needed for construction of a joint fire-police headquarters.

AT ANY PRICE

The owner of at least one parcel of land in the 33-acre site, other than those two sections, does not want to sell his land at any price, Coun. Passmore told council.

Coun. Passmore had moved that Saanich voters should be asked: "Are you in favor of acquiring 33 acres for the municipal hall and civic building sites?"

He said his main objections to the scheme were that it was too close to Victoria and not close enough to the centre of Saanich, and landowners being forced to sell their land when it was not certain that voters would give council permission to build the civic centre after all.

WHY 33 ACRES?

"Oak Bay, Esquimalt and city hall operate on one acre each. Why do we need 33 acres?" he asked.

Coun. Stanley Murphy objected to the plebiscite saying that the question is not sufficiently explicit and a "no" vote could be interpreted two ways.

Reeve Chatterton scored the motion as "not practical."

PUT TO PEOPLE

"I think the only thing is what we have done," he said. "Find the site, acquire it and then put it to the people."

He told Coun. Passmore that expropriation proceedings have not been agreed to by council for any land other than the eight acres needed for the joint fire-police headquarters.

"That's the end of the line for me," Coun. Passmore commented when his motion was defeated.

Vernon Avenue. Earlier, the council's advisory planning committee and town planner Antony Parr opposed it.

Before the rezoning bylaw was put to the vote, Reeve George Chatterton hinted strongly that if the application was rejected the company would find another site within Saanich municipality.

Apartment Plans

12-Storey Building To Cost $1,000,000

Plans for a 12-storey, $1,000,000 apartment block to be built on the site of the Old Charming Inn on Beach Drive were outlined last night by a representative of a Vancouver construction firm.

E. D. Blake of British Dutch Construction Co. said his firm is ready to make final plans immediately if council gives its permission.

Buildings in Oak Bay are now limited to three levels.

A number of recent applications for six-level apartment buildings have been turned down by council.

"If the municipality continues the limitation soon all the waterfront will be taken up by three-storey, wide buildings, where higher buildings would take up less room and accommodate more tenants," Mr. Blake said.

Between 60 and 70 suites would be included in the building, "similar in appearance to the B.C. Electric building."

The matter has been turned over to the Town Planning Advisory Commission.

U.S. Law Responsible for Hydrofoil Service

Victoria became one of three ports-of-call in a proposed hydrofoil passenger ferry service because of a U.S. law which prohibits foreign-built vessels from plying between American mainland ports.

Dr. Frank A. Calderone, New York, the owner of the Italian-built hydrofoil vessel Flying Fish, disclosed at a press conference here yesterday that the primary purpose of putting the craft on a Victoria-Bellingham-Friday Harbor schedule is to prove the economic feasibility of hydrofoil operation in North American waters.

He said a U.S. shipping law which forbids domestic coastal shipping with "foreign-built bottoms" forced organizers of the Hydrofoil Operations and Development Co. of Bellingham to find a foreign port—Victoria—to round out their list of terminals.

But he hopes the inauguration of the Victoria-Bellingham run, still some weeks away, will not only prove the economic feasibility of hydrofoil operation in the Pacific but also of the chosen route. Dr. Calderone, who bought Flying Fish in Italy in 1957 and operated it briefly in the Caribbean on an experimental basis, made it clear that the group behind the Georgia Strait proposal hopes to create a strong passenger demand for such a service with a view to putting larger hydrofoils into production in the U.S. and Canada.

He said operation of the Flying Fish in the Caribbean was not a failure and has not been abandoned.

The craft was taken out of service there because of lack of proper maintenance facilities, and will return after some months when such facilities are available.

He explained that because the craft is made of aluminum and because its foils must be kept scrupulously clean in order to provide maximum lift, the Flying Fish should be lifted out of salt water weekly. Caribbean ports lacked a crane large enough to lift the 20-ton vessel and as a consequence the cost of the regular scrubbing and paint inspection ran to $2,000 every time Flying Fish came out of water.

Such cranes are available in both Victoria and Bellingham, he pointed out, and, as a result, the weekly hull and hydrofoil maintenance program can be carried out in about two hours.

Dr. Calderone, one-time medical director of the United Nations Health Service and a former deputy director of the World Health Organization under Victoria's Dr. Brock Chisholm, said that because of extensive bulkheading and the use of buoyant plastics the Flying Fish is unsinkable.

So safe it is considered in Italy, he went on, that sister ships to the Flying Fish operating between Sicily and Italy over the Messina Strait and carrying 250,000 passengers a year are not required to carry any safety equipment.

The craft's owner said the hydrofoils not only allow it to operate at high speeds in relatively calm water (waves up to four feet high) but act as stabilizers when it is riding on its hull in rough water.

"In thousands of miles carrying thousands of passengers in the Caribbean there were only four people seasick," recalled the doctor, "and one was pregnant while another started to get seasick before she got off the dock."

He put the record straight on the speed capabilities of the Flying Fish, previously reported as high as 40 knots. The craft cruises at 30 knots and at full throttle will reach 36 knots (41.4 miles an hour), he said.

He thought the vessel might make a maiden trial run to Victoria later this week.

Fare for the Victoria-Bellingham service will be $2.50 each way and the Flying Fish is scheduled to make two round trips a day.

Officials of the operating company are currently paving the way for Canadian approval to operate the international service.

Lots of 'Hubs' On the Island

Button, button, who has the hub? Vancouver Island apparently has more hubs than a wobbly circus bicycle.

During a junket of civic and chamber of commerce officials the length of Vancouver Island last week, the title "hub" was claimed by Nanaimo as the trading centre of the island; Qualicum Beach as the vacationland centre; Courtenay as the geographical centre; Campbell River as the north island trading centre and Alert Bay as the hub of the north.

Sicamous

Victoria Man Killed

A 76-year-old Victoria man was killed Sunday morning in a two-car collision 16 miles east of Sicamous in the B.C. interior, it was learned here last night.

Lorne Edwin Mackenzie, 200 Douglas, a director of the Stanmark Mining Co., was a passenger in his own car when it was struck by an onrushing car driven by Waltraud Reichel of Sardis, B.C., at 10:30 a.m.

Driver of the death car, Alvin Erickson, 58, of Revelstoke, and Reichel were in fair condition in a hospital at Salmon Arm, RCMP Sicamous detachment told the Colonist by telephone last night. Both drivers suffered chest injuries as a result of the crash.

Mr. Mackenzie was returning to Revelstoke where he had been investigating a gold mine in which his firm was interested. The body was taken to Salmon Arm, police said.

According to Mrs. Mackenzie, her husband left Victoria June 9 for the interior.

Besides his widow, Jean, at home, Mr. Mackenzie is survived by sons Alec, Vancouver, Kenneth, Nanaimo, Donald, Montreal; daughter Betty, Calgary; sister Viola, Toronto, and two brothers.

Election Notebook

Newly-'Married' CCF Has Much at Stake

By TERRY HAMMOND

Observers are pointing out that perhaps not even the Social Credit party has more at stake in the Sept. 12 election than the CCF.

First, the B.C. election will be the first test of CCF popularity since the formal marriage of the party with the Canadian Labor Congress.

Second, each successive failure at the polls takes a little more steam out of the basic CCF platform because at each new election more and more of the planks of socialism appear in the platforms of the old line parties.

The present campaign saw the CCF's long-nurtured medical expense coverage crop up among things their opponents are in favor of, and the government's plans to put B.C. Hydro in charge of Columbia River development takes public ownership a step further.

Victoria Liberal candidate Geoff Edgelow, who is also an alderman, broke down for a public meeting last night the net effect of the federal provincial winter-work grants to this city.

Into the program went a total of $60,820 which provided four months work for 21 men on public works and four to six weeks work for 15 men on parks, but, Mr. Edgelow claimed, Victoria taxpayers put up $42,000, the federal government $12,800 and the province only $6,000.

Highways Minister Gagliardi's prediction of a "dirty" campaign took on a measure of substance yesterday, at least in the eyes of CCF Leader Bob Strachan.

A Vancouver Stock Exchange report which claimed that investment decisions involving more than $450,000,000 in B.C.'s gas and oil industry could be affected by election results was branded "dirty, rotten politics" by Mr. Strachan.

The report said that from long experience "the oil and gas industry is sensitive to nationalistic or socialistic attack."

Medical Issue Grabbed

Rolling northward aboard the government-owned PGE railway, of which he is president, Premier Bennett seemed unconcerned over an earlier statement by the CCF leader that a Soared survey-in-depth had warned him of an impending CCF victory.

He said he was opening his campaign in the north because "the issue in this election is going to be the dynamic development in the golden sixties—that is the issue and it means jobs."

In Vancouver Health Minister Eric Martin predicted increased hospital insurance coverage as a result of a provincial-federal agreement, and pointed out that in the past eight years B.C. hospital patients have been paid $225,000,000 in the acute care field.

In Vancouver yesterday Liberal leader Ray Perrault accused Premier Bennett of "whistling by the unemployment graveyard."

None of the premier's "pie-in-the-sky speeches," he said, lessens "the grim fact that (unemployment) is the number one crisis today."

Esquimalt Conservative candidate Jimmy Bryant announced last night he's going to keep his campaign in the family—his son Ray, a second-year law student at UBC and recently married, is returning to the city from his honeymoon this week to act as "Pop's" campaign manager.

Jimmy says he plans no public meetings before the election, "but I'm making hundreds of calls all over the constituency."

Former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, speaking in Vancouver as the party's adviser in its bid to increase its 10-seat representation, said Canadians have for several years "been living in an economy artificially buoyed by war production."

Cutbacks in this have brought about the present unemployment problem, he said, and he proposed a permanent federal-provincial committee to cope with the problem.

He said Canada has "wasted millions" on the production of obsolescent war material.

Restraint nature of the 1960 election campaign is apparent everywhere.

In Oak Bay last night when unidentified persons defaced the Soared headquarters office at Oak Bay Avenue and Monterey they did so with the "Go, Grit" slogan, neatly printed and in letters only eight inches high.

Preliminary plans for a Progressive Conservative rally at the Britannia branch, Canadian Legion Hall at 8 p.m. Sept. 8 were announced yesterday.

All PC candidates in Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay ridings are being invited to speak.

Between fall fair and political campaign, Saanich Progressive Conservative candidate Victor Virgin is going to be a busy man. His schedule already includes:

Aug. 29, Saanich luncheon for Burnaby PC candidate Mrs. Bea Zucco, Blue Room; Sept. 2, Sidney Chamber of Commerce all-candidates meeting; Sept. 3 and 5, Saanich Agricultural Fair—Mr. Virgin is an official; Sept. 6, Oak Bay municipal hall, in support of J. A. A. George; Sept. 7, dairymen's all-candidates meeting, Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall; Sept. 8, Greater Victoria PC rally; Sept. 9, Saanich Agricultural Association's all-candidates meeting, Saanichton.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our 13-year-old daughter Marcia is an attractive, wholesome girl with a winning personality. But I wonder if she is developing normally.

Marcia was invited to a boy-girl party and refused without even discussing it with us. When I asked her why she didn't care to go she said, "Boys are creeps. They don't like to dance and they're too dumb to talk."

It doesn't seem right that a young girl should not be interested in boys. She'll never learn to be at ease with the opposite sex if she continues to have this indifferent attitude. What shall I do with her?—VSA.

Dear VSA: Don't be so eager to push the little bird out of the nest. She'll fly when her wings are ready.

It's downright refreshing to hear about a 13-year-old girl who isn't already rehearsing to be a man-trap.

If Marcia wants to work on her scout badges for another year or two, take it from me, mother, there's nothing to be alarmed about. This is much better than the accelerated dating program which overzealous mothers are encouraging today.

Dear Ann Landers: The man I'm going with couldn't be nicer. We are both in our late 30s and we know what life is all about.

When I tell you the problem you'll probably think I'm a brainless juvenile, but honestly, I do need help. His moustache tickles me when we kiss. Nothing spoils a romantic mood like laughter and this is getting to be a problem.

I like the looks of his moustache and would miss it if he shaved it off. What I need from you is a mature rationalization, something to think about so I won't laugh. Please help me. I'd be grateful.—NO LAUGHING MATTER.

Dear No Laughing: The thought to hold uppermost in your mind is this: He's a gem of a guy—and you should be tickled to death.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to the woman who cried because her guests' high-heeled shoes left pock-marks in her vinyl vestibule missed the point completely.

Let's put the blame where it belongs. It's not the lack of durability of the floor covering. It's the metal lifts on those ridiculous heels. They REAL LY dig in.

If enough women screamed in unison to the shoe clerks the word would get back to the manufacturers promptly and they would discontinue metal lifts.

Damage to floors and rugs is only part of the story. Thousands of women snag or tear holes in their nylons when they cross their legs. And for some mysterious reason, the heels on the ladies shoes are precisely the right size to get stuck in perforated rubber mats and steel sidewalk grates.

I'm in the shoe business and know there are other materials that could be used. If women refuse to buy shoes with metal lifts, they'll get something else.—G. M. T.

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to the gals whose stiletto heels ruin the rugs and floors, I invite them over to play croquet. It's a wonderful way to aerate the lawn.—UNIDENTIFIED STAFFER.

Confidential to Dubious: Beware of people who are constantly telling you how honest they are. Your friend sounds like the type who would never tell a fib if the truth will do more harm.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, read Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

WHAT'S COOKING

For a lovely lunch or supper, why not borrow a trick from the Danes and serve a selection of smorgasbord? Here to choose from are some suggestions which have been approved by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Sardine Special: Cover slices of buttered rye bread with cottage cheese which has been blended with a little oil and lemon juice. (To 1 cup of cottage cheese add 1 tablespoon of oil from a can of sardines and 1 teaspoon of lemon juice.) Place 3 to 4 Canadian sardines on each cheese spread slice. Top them with a slice of unpickled cucumber and 3 or 4 capers.

Creamy Herring: Butter thin slices of pumpernickel bread and spread with thick cream from a jar of creamy marinated herring. Pile several pieces of herring on top and garnish with a chain of raw onion rings dipped in paprika.

Smoked Salmon and Cucumber: Butter slices of rye bread. Top with sliced cucumber and smoked salmon. Use a pastry tube to add a garnish of cream cheese.

Smoked Salmon and Asparagus Roll-Ups: Butter thin slices of rye bread. Centre each slice with several canned asparagus spears banded with a strip of smoked salmon. Cover the sides of the bread with rosy tomato wedges.

Pelletsomeness: Cover thin slices of buttered rye bread with tomato slices. Top each tomato slice with a slice of hard-cooked egg. Place a marinated herring tidbit, or a piece of canned anchovy fillet on each egg slice.

Sardine Wheels: Butter round slices of bread and top with a thin slice of cheese cut to matching size or, spread the bread with softened cream cheese. Arrange wheel-spokes of silvery sardines on the cheese. In the centre place a thin slice of lemon, cut and twisted into an "S" shape.

Shrimp and Sliced Eggs: Use buttered cracked wheat or white bread. Top each slice with 5 cooked jumbo shrimp and 3 hard-cooked egg slices. Garnish each egg slice with a slice of stuffed olive.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

Up and over the horizon, children of a fresh generation go on their way to school in September.

How ready will they be for the new and long-desired adventure?

A fresh dress, "best" shoes, newly cut hair and especially well-washed hands and face are outward signs of readiness. Inwardly, the child's readiness has been built up through his early years.

He has his own degree of health and vitality. These will be the result of good food, and good food habits, of fresh air, rest and happy activity.

The child brings as well his own personality, partly shaped by heredity, turned this way and that by environment.

Already, by his fifth year, he will have formed his particular way of meeting new experiences, and school is a new experience indeed. But even in the short time that is left you can still give him a last bit of help.

The strangeness of the school building, and the walk to reach it can become familiar if you go with him several times and have a look around. These trips can also give you assurance that the child is putting your safety teaching into practice.

A few periods of play with the materials and tools he will use at school—paper, crayons, scissors, paste—will make his work more familiar.

Habits of tidiness in putting away clothes and toys may need to be finished off. Teachers appreciate tidiness!

What not to do is also important. Do not lay too much stress on school during the last few days.

A child who is ready must also be steady so that his going is happy.

Father Participates In Catholic Wedding

TORONTO (CP)—A United Church minister gave his daughter in marriage Saturday in a Roman Catholic wedding ceremony conducted by James Cardinal McGuigan at St. Michael's Cathedral.

Hungarian-born Rev. Leslie Pokoly of the Church of All Nations led his 21-year-old daughter Eve, up the aisle for her marriage to Paul Payer, a Hungarian.

The bride was brought up in her mother's faith as a Roman Catholic. The groom, also a Roman Catholic, is a former University of Sopron mining engineering student now entering civil engineering at the University of Toronto.

The bride's father, brought up a Protestant and ordained a minister of the United Church after he came to Canada 1951, said he acted within his faith when he wore his clerical collar to give his daughter away.

DECEED BY LAW

"My daughters were christened after their mother in the Catholic faith as we had decided to follow the Hungarian Marriage Act of 1894," he said. The act had decreed that in mixed marriages boys would follow the father's faith and girls the mother's.

He said since the death of the girl's mother in Germany in 1947 he felt he was "bound to the original agreement I had made with my wife in Hungary while I was a civil servant

Store Peach In Cool Spot

Peaches have withstood the battering of centuries. Today's delicate golden peach would certainly not be recognized as the descendant of the wild fruit known as far back as the year 2000 B.C. At that time, the peach was small, hairy and hard.

A peach's complexion is very important and should be examined closely before buying. The complexion forms the background of the peach and should be lightish green or yellowish and not dark green. If the peaches you have bought are ripe and you are not ready to use them, spread them out on a tray so they will not bruise and store them in a cool place. On the other hand, if they are a little under-ripe they will ripen at room temperature.

Judith Mary Bigmore Weds D. R. K. Easton

Chilliwack, B.C., will be home for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robert Kenneth Easton, who were married in Oaklands Chapel on Saturday afternoon. The groom has joined the teaching staff of the Chilliwack school.

Mr. Huron Sheppard of Duncan performed the wedding ceremony for the former Judith Mary Bigmore, daughter of Mrs. James Bigmore, Richmond Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Easton, Wootton Crescent.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Marshall Sheppard. Her bridal gown featured a short sleeved lace bodice and tiered skirt of silk organza. Princess roses and stephanotis formed her bouquet. Her headress was of the same flowers and held a veil of French silk illusion. Miss Lillian Easton, maid of honor, and Miss Mary Dewar, Miss Nola Neale and Miss Barbara Munday, bridesmaids, wore dresses styled alike with bouffant skirts and velvet trim in vander blue organza.

They carried bouquets of Princess roses and had the same flowers with feathered pink carnations in their hair.

Mr. Murray Easton was best man and Mr. Bryan Burkinshaw, Mr. Mel Smith, Mr. Elred Williams, Mr. Peter Shwring and Mr. David Woodward acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. E. Conarroe sang "I'll Walk With God." Miss Darlene Bagshaw was organist.

At the reception held in the lower ballroom of the Crystal ballroom Mr. Huron Sheppard proposed the toast. Mrs. C. Conarroe and Miss Nola Neale both sang solos and Mrs. Ken Dick played the violin.

For a honeymoon to be spent motoring in Washington and British Columbia the new Mrs. Easton wore a pink wool suit with white accessories and rosebuds corsage.

Vancouver Home For Newlyweds

Father J. MacLean, RCN, celebrated the nuptial mass in the Queen of Peace Church on Saturday morning when Vaughn Magdalen Barlow was united in marriage with Sub Lieut. Roderick Charles Smith.

Baskets of white and coral gladiolus decorated the church and pews were marked with white satin ribbons. Mrs. Evelyn McGee sang Schubert's "Ave Maria." "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother." Mrs. W. Gill was at the organ.

As the couple left the church they passed under swords of a naval guard of honor with Lt. Cmdr. D. A. Scott in charge. Parents of the couple are Lt. Cmdr. Frank Barlow and Mrs. Barlow, 437 Moresby Road, and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Smith of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Lustrous white oriental satin with overskirt of white nylon organza formed the floor-length wedding gown, styled on classic lines with long sleeves and scalloped Sabrina neckline. The illusion net veil was held with a hand-made satin and pearl headress and the cascade bouquet was of white gardenias and stephanotis.

Bride's jewelry was white pearl earrings and a naval crown pin of rhinestones, gift of the groom, and she carried a sterling silver wedding rosary. She was given in marriage by her father.

Senior attendants, Miss Carol Cambrey, Miss Edna-May Dyart and Miss Clare Holmes, and the flower girl, Miss Cynthia Plant all wore white nylon organza dresses over apricot slips. White and apricot-toned bows were senior attendants' headpieces and the flower girl wore a crown of matching flowers. All carried colonial bouquets en tone.

Full naval uniforms were worn by the groom, his best man, Sub-Lt. G. W. Kantz, and the ushers, Midshipmen K. MacKenzie and R. Douglas.

Reception was held in HMCS Naden wardroom where Lt. Cmdr. J. Sutherland proposed the toast. A wedding cake topped with a naval crown was cut by the couple with a sword belonging to the bride's father. Following a honeymoon in British Columbia, the young couple will make their home in Vancouver. The bride travelled in a beige linen sheath dress and coat, pale lilac accessories and wearing an orchid corsage.

Garden Notes

Pick Only the Best

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Many of my gardening friends will be collecting and saving the seeds of various flowers and possibly of tomatoes as they ripen, and selecting seed potatoes for planting next spring. As in all gardening operations, there is a right way and a wrong way to make your selection.

The trick here is to take your seed from the best plants rather than from the best individual flower, fruit or tuber. With tomatoes, for instance, it isn't enough that the particular tomato selected for fruit should be a super-duper specimen, for even a poor plant can sometimes produce one good fruit. Keep your eyes open for a really good all-round plant—one that is bearing a heavy crop of well-formed, good-sized fruits. Earliness is important in our cool climate, too, and the plant which ripens its fruit first is a good candidate for seed.

The same general principle applies to flowers—select seed from the plant which puts on the best performance rather than from any individual bloom. Earliness is not important here, but habit of growth must play a part in your choice. A glorious flower on a too-tall, straggly Petunia will set seed which will only produce more scrawny stragglers.

This technique is most essential when selecting seed potatoes. A good seed tuber should be about the size of a Grade A Large hen's egg, clean and free from scab, smooth-skinned and with shallow eyes to make for ease in peeling, but above all, it should come from a plant which has produced a better-than-average number of eating-size potatoes.

The only time you can make an intelligent selection of seed potatoes is when the crop is being lifted, for this is when you can compare the performance of all the plants in your potato patch.

Once the crop is picked up and put into store, your opportunity to select on the basis of the parent plant's performance is gone. Selecting seed while lifting is not such a nuisance as may be supposed, as it only means keeping a carton or basket handy for the seed tubers, and upgrading next year's crop in this way is well worth the extra effort.

Potatoes for eating are dried off in the sun for two or three hours, then are sacked up and stored in cool darkness. Seed tubers need drying and cool storage, too, but in full light, for the greener they become, the better.

The blanching of celery is in full swing now and, for this operation, it is most important to have the soil in a nice semi-dry, friable condition.

If you are growing your celery in trenches, be sure to flood the trenches thoroughly before earthing up, as it is difficult to get moisture to the roots once the earth is banked up around the plants, and this final watering must do until the plants are harvested.

The ridges on either side of the trench can be broken up with a fork a few days before earthing up, to help it dry out. Any side shoots or suckers on the celery should be wrenched off and any discolored leaves removed. If small black slugs are bothersome in your garden, better put down some slug killer in the trench before earthing up begins.

Try not to get any earth in the hearts when mounding soil up around the plants and, to this end, the stalks should be bunched closely together. If you are working single-handed, one old-time gardener's trick is to hold the stalks together with bicycle clips while applying the earth, or you can simply tie them up with bits of string or lengths of Twists.

Good News for Fussy Fans

This is likely to be the great year for taped shows as opposed to filmed shows, the year in which tape may overtake film as a way of putting shows on television. For those who like quality television this is good news.

Of course, perfectly dreadful shows can be taped as well as filmed. But, historically, the tape crowd, the people who know most about tape and are most familiar and enthusiastic about it, are the people who came out of live television. Above all, they were trained in television, not in the movies; they learned their trade in the East and they think in terms of quality.

The film crowd were brought up in Hollywood. Most of the people who make your filmed TV shows such as Westerns were making C and D grade movies before television. They're quantity people, not quality people.

Historically, people in the West think in terms of film. It's as basic to them as steel is to the automobile industry. Conversely the TV crowd in the East think in terms of electronics, and tape is a child of the electronic age. Actually, there is room for both in a huge industry like television. But the advent of tape, which came in the nick of time, gives the East a chance to regain some of its standing in the industry.

Maybe the East will again share equal billing with the West as a producer of television shows. This is a change devoutly to be hoped for. The survival of television as an exciting medium (as opposed to its being a peddler of narcotics) is directly linked with the survival of East Coast production.

The shift to film and consequently to the West Coast was prompted by economics. The shift to tape and back to the East will be dictated by the same economic forces. At first it was considered to be simply a substitute for live television. It was done for the convenience of a few performers.

But it was costly. You had to pay performers and technicians the same to repeat a taped show as to repeat it live. Film payments were much less. This is all changing. Within a very short time, the cost of tape and film will be identical. (Film costs have gone up, tape has come down.)

In addition, the market for taped shows has increased tremendously in the last year and a half. Where originally only the rich metropolitan stations had tape machines, now every station, including educational stations, has tape equipment. Tape is rapidly spreading abroad, too.

Actually, the tape revolution has only begun. In another five years, tape may very well supplant film in the theatres. Perhaps we will have it in the home by then—not only for sound which we already have at home but for pictures too. Within a decade or so film may well be as obsolete as the daguerrotype.

Paul Newman on 'Seesaw'

LONDON (NANA)—Paul Newman will play the Henry Fonda role in the movie version of "Two for the Seesaw." And Elizabeth Taylor may not play the leading lady, unless her husband Eddie Fisher lands the co-producing chore with the Mirisch brothers.

Yves Montand read his role in his picture with Ingrid Bergman and Tony Perkins, the Francoise Sagan, "Almeida, Brahma," and they are now rewriting his part. Anatole Litvak, who directed Ingrid in her Oscar-winning, "Anastasia," is in charge.

Has it been reported, by the way, that Mlle. Sagan was recently in Cuba reporting the doings of Fidel Castro?

That man you see running will be Cary Grant starring for himself and partner Stanley Donen, in "Man Running," in Paris, Madrid, Rome and London—a thriller.

Sam Spiegel, who can only see Marlon Brando as "Lawrence of Arabia," is ready to postpone his epic until next January to get him after "Mutiny on the Bounty." If he would rather not wait, may I suggest Sir Alec Guinness who plays the same part in "Ross" so brilliantly, on-the-London stage?

Just how solid is the marriage of Marilyn Monroe and Arthur Miller? I'd hate to see this one break up.

No wonder Brigitte Bardot's husband Jacques Charrler looks so worried. He has a date with the French army board again before the end of the year which will decide whether Jacques is well enough to resume his soldiering. His treatment has included four weeks in hospital on the new "sleep" cure.

Miss Bardot, you may be glad to learn, is the old "brig" in her current film, "The Truth." Showing lots of Bardot body. The film is a shocker with Brigitte committing murder. When she was asked recently, "Are you happy with your husband," the recent new mother replied, "I have no husband, I have two children."

Carl Foreman's "Guns of Navarone" is $2,000,000 over budget. But today it isn't what you spend on a film that counts, but how good it is. And, to judge by my many visits to the set, I don't believe that Carl and Columbia have to worry.

Star Gregory Peck will get a month of rest in his south-of-France villa before returning to Hollywood to prepare his next picture, "The Executioners." Greg is now staying at the Connaught Hotel in London with his wife, and their two young children. What a lovely hotel this is. And what food! 'Twas here that nine days ago, I tasted my first grouse of the season. Very yummy, if you like your game high.

Margaret's Ex-Butler Accepts Post in U.S.

LONDON — Princess Margaret's former butler has accepted a job in the United States which he says will bring him more money a year than a British cabinet minister gets.

Thomas Cronin, 44, who quit the royal household because he couldn't get along with the princess' husband, Anthony Armstrong-Jones, told a reporter he is joining the Danja Jai Alai Palace, a Florida tourist centre north of Miami, as butler-host at a salary of $15,000 a year in addition to free food, clothing and accommodation.

DANBURY, Conn. — Actor Barry Thompson, 52, husband of former movie star Ruth Chatterton, died after a heart attack.

ITALY — Police arrested American jazz trumpeter Chet Baker on narcotics charges.

BURNABY — Two women murder suspects appeared in police court and were remanded until Aug. 29. Mrs. Violet May Benson, Creston, mother of four, is charged with the shotgun slaying of her husband, and Mrs. Winifred Dorothy Tosoff of Prince George is charged in the death of a child left in her charge by the provincial social welfare department.

HAVANA — Paul D. Wilson, a dishonorably-discharged U.S. air force sergeant recently released from prison in Indiana, says he hopes to join Premier Fidel Castro's intelligence service as "a loyal Cuba patriot."

WILSON tried to defect to Russia while serving in Germany.

COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Two days and 80 miles short of her goal, British marathon walker Dr. Barbara Moore Monday stopped for the night here. She is due to reach Toronto for Wednesday's opening of the Canadian National Exhibition.

BROCKVILLE, Ont. — A boy teamed up with Transport Minister Hees to open officially the $300,000 William Street railway overpass here. Douglas Bonbottom was born in a car at the crossing 10 years ago when his parents found their route to hospital blocked by a slow-moving train.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Psychologist Charles Cottle says he has been fired from the state penitentiary for opposing "the inhuman treatment of prisoners"—which includes, he says, beatings with a large leather belt.

ZURICH, Ont. — Mrs. James Masse, mother of 21 children, died at 68. She had a family numbering 164, counting grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

TORONTO — Pat Watson, co-producer of the CBC television program Close-up, was in fair condition Monday after doctors amputated his left leg. He injured his leg while constructing a summer cottage.

MOSCOW — Francis Gary Powers has asked his father to "please bring money" when he visits him today. The imprisoned pilot says he needs cash to buy cigarettes and other small luxuries in jail.

Edmonton Chinese Cheer Opera 'Line'

EDMONTON (CP) — More than 250 Chinese-Canadians applauded long and loudly when the director of the visiting Peking Opera told them at a banquet that China is "really powerful and strong" and it is only a question of time before it "liberates Taiwan (Formosa)" by either force or peaceful methods.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Connie Francis was telling Dolores Hart, George Hamilton and Yvette Mimieux, her co-stars in "Where the Boys Are," of her most embarrassing show business experience.

She had reported to Boston's Mayfair Club for her first important engagement. Thrilled and excited, she floated onto the stage in a short bouffant gown, prepared to sing her heart out.

The audience that night was filled with fun-loving, high-spirited conventioners, who were much too busy making noise and wisecracks to appreciate her singing. At first Connie took it all as graciously as possible, then she became annoyed at the continuing bedlam and haughtily strode off the stage.

There, gathered about her feet, was a ridiculous looking bundle of white. The waist elastic on her full petticoat had snapped as he was making her exit, and the undershirt dropped lower and lower as she left the stage.

Buy BCE—Coldwell

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said here Monday that the British Columbia Electric Company must be bought out as the first move in saving and building this province for British Columbians.

Green Hits Socreds

VANCOUVER—External Affairs Minister Green announced Monday he will take part in British Columbia's election campaign. He criticized Social Credit Premier Bennett for "throwing his babies on the federal lap."

At a dog conference at the Russian news agency Tass 1 patted both dogs. From looking at them, you'd never know they were whizzing around the earth about 200 miles up as late as Saturday.

The dogs were nervous at first. They quickly became friendly after first giving me a growl. Strelka (Little Arrow) came and licked my hand.

Strelka and Belka (Squirrel) are small dogs about 10 pounds each. The size of fox terriers, they are of mixed ancestry.

HARNESS REMOVED

The electric harness of the space ride had been removed from the dogs. But they wore sweaters to hide the electrodes still buried under their hides.

A rat, two black mice and two white mice were in little cages about four by eight inches and they galloped around inside.

"Then came the state of weightlessness. The dogs hung in the air. The paws and heads hung limply down. Gradually they began raising their heads and moving their paws. Belka got angry and started barking. . . . But gradually they got used to everything."

WEIGHTLESS STATE

MANCHESTER, Mass. (AP)—State police said Monday a tube of radioactive strontium 90 is missing from an atomic energy research laboratory in Manchester.

A general alarm bulletin was issued alerting fire and police agencies throughout the state. The material, in a five-foot container, was described by police as "very dangerous."

Strikers Restive

Seamen Leaders Call Off Strike

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—Leaders of the National Seamen's Reform Movement called off a wildcat strike here Monday night after admitting strikers were showing signs of discontent.

But strike leaders in some other British ports were reported urging seamen to stick it out.

Southampton leaders announced their decision after a meeting attended by about 50 strikers—the smallest turnout since the strike began two weeks ago.

The leaders here, however, said they would still go on recruiting members for their organization, aimed as much against the seamen's union as the shipowners. The "reform movement" made the original call for the walkout, which spread rapidly to other ports.

One of the strike leaders said the men already involved in the stoppage were being advised to return to their ships. No further attempt would be made to bring out on strike the crews of any of the liners now in Southampton.

Advance Poll Dates Set

Advance polls for voters of the Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay ridings who can't cast their ballots Sept. 12 will be held Sept. 8, 9 and 10 in the YMCA, Victoria returning officer A. M. Browne said yesterday.

Hours of voting will be from 1 to 9 p.m. each day.

More Than 500 Die In Cholera Epidemic

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI)—More than 500 persons have died in a cholera epidemic that has swept across west Pakistan, the ministry of health reported yesterday. The epidemic has been brought under control, it was said, but reports of a few new cases continue to trickle in. Officials said the U.S. international co-operation administration had been of great help in a mass inoculation program.

Japan's Peace Offer Stalled 21 Days Before Hiroshima

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newspaper reports on still-secret state papers say they show former president Harry Truman allowed Russia to stall off a Japanese peace offer three weeks before the first atomic bomb wrecked Hiroshima.

The reports say also that Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin once praised Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as an "honest man" for turning over to the Russians 135,000 German troops who had tried to surrender to American forces. These and other statements

Hammerstein died at his home at nearby Highland Farms of stomach cancer.

HIT OF CENTURY

With Richard Rodgers, Hammerstein wrote some of the most notable and popular shows of the century.

"I am in love with a wonderful theatre," was Hammerstein's own comment on the career that swept across 40 years of entertainment enterprise.

SHOW HISTORY

One biographer noted: "He has been associated with more notable musicals than any other showman in the history of the American theatre."

When composer Cole Porter was once asked to name the most profound change in musical theatre in recent years, he replied tersely, "Rodgers and Hammerstein."

ALL COMPOSERS

He began by writing a play in 1920, but soon after developed into a lyricist, writing words for the music of virtually every ranking composer—Rudolph Friml, Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern, Vincent Youmans and George Gershwin.

Poignant, tender and touching were the rhymes that poured in an endless torrent from his pen, until there were the words of more than a thousand songs.

WHAT HE WROTE

Among them were "Ol' Man River," "Who?" "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," "Only Make Believe." Later came the products of R and H teamwork—"Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "People Will Say We're in Love," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "You'll Never Walk Alone," "Some Enchanted Evening," and "Younger Than Springtime."

"I know the world is filled with trouble and many injustices," he said of his unabashed sentimentality, "but reality is as beautiful as it is ugly."

Edward and Per Gronn missed their ship and were found sitting in Somass Hotel lounge doorway. They were charged with being intoxicated in a public place. They said their home is in London.

Also before Magistrate W. E. MacLeod Saturday was Stanley Taylor, fined $125 after pleading guilty to impaired driving. His car was involved in a collision at Tenth Avenue and Redford Friday night. A passenger in the second car was injured, police said.

Charged with causing wilful damage, Julius Bela was given a two-month suspended sentence and ordered to make restitution to a neighbor for evergreen shrubs on which, according to police, he had been found "pouring something or another from a can."

The incident resulted in a fight and from a year-long dispute between neighbors, Magistrate MacLeod was told by police.

First Comox Sports Day Seen by Crowd of 2,000

COMOX — First annual Comox Day of water and field sports Saturday was judged a huge success by officials and the public.

A crowd of 2,000 watched the first float parade ever held at Comox. Children's and adult sports followed at Balmoral Park.

Later in the afternoon the program shifted to Comox Bay for novel swimming, fishing and boating competitions.

Comox volunteer fire department beat out Comox Legion and the Courtenay Rotary Club in a half-mile rowing race to win the HMCS Quadra trophy oar.

In the main swimming event of the day, Jerry Vowles, a 27-year-old sailor from HMCS Quadra at the Comox Bay Spit, fought a heavy chop for 20.1 minutes in the 1,250-yard event. He was presented with the Comox Municipal Trophy.

Len Francis, Comox, won himself first prize for boating an RCAF frogman in eight minutes on a 30-pound test line in a new twist in rod and reel competitions.

A sunset ceremony on the main street by Sea Cadets from HMCS Quadra and an open-air dance on the Elk Hotel tennis courts concluded the day.

Peter Boudot of Cowichan

Funeral Today For Pioneer

DUNCAN — Old-timers here will make one of their rare trips from home today to go to the funeral of Peter Boudot, 87, a direct link with two of Cowichan's first pioneer families.

He died Saturday at Lady-smith General Hospital after a brief illness that ended a farming career that spanned half a century.

Quiet and patient, he helped many families build their homes and donated his time and effort in the erection of many public buildings.

Born at the junction of Maple Bay and Tzouhalem Roads, he lived to see the day when more cars pass in a day than the old corner where his father, Pierre Boudot, a Frenchman, had a store and traded with the Indians, than horses were seen in a month.

After the death of his father, Mr. Boudot lived with the pioneer Beaumont family at Mount View Cemetery, Soanens.

Rev. Bernard Knipe will officiate at the service in the First Funeral Chapel today starting at 2 p.m. Burial will be in Mountain View Cemetery, Soanens.

Fish Plentiful But Small Cowichan Derby Indicates

DUNCAN—Fish caught in Cowichan Bay this year were smaller than during the last two years, but fishing officials are not worried.

It appears to be a cycle year, comparing to a small catch in 1957, said Mrs. Doris Lawrence, secretary of the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club.

Figures indicate nearly as many fish are being caught, but they are smaller. The statistics come from the bay's annual salmon ladder derby that closed Saturday, and records.

Biggest fish caught during the eight-week derby was by Dick James, Victoria, who got a 37-pounder and a silver tray. Last year Frank Noski of Ladysmith took it with a 42.4-pound catch.

The top 50 fishermen will fish off at the bay on Sunday for a $100 top prize and $50 for the second. Check-out point on the government wharf opens at 5 a.m. Weigh-in station at the wharf closes at 8 p.m.

There were a total of 127 fish weighed in compared with 188 last year, 152 in 1958 and 128 in 1957.

Lowest rung on the ladder this year was taken with a 19.12 catch. Last year the bottom fish was at least five pounds heavier.

Freighter's Crewmen Strike In Sympathy

NANAIMO — Twenty-five crew members from the freighter Sithenia, now loading lumber at Nanaimo harbor, have gone on a 24-hour token strike in sympathy with the strike of seamen in Britain.

The ship was scheduled to sail today. The ship arrived in Nanaimo Friday to load lumber and was due to sail this morning.

Involved in the 24-hour strike are the deck hands, firemen and members of the stewards department. The ship is bound for Australia.

Peace Offer Accepted

NANAIMO (CP) — Striking CPR truckers here have accepted an offer from the Nanaimo, Alberni and District labor council to attempt settlement of a six-day walkout. The decision to intervene was made at a council meeting Sunday. A committee will meet with the CPR to negotiate a contract.

Many truckers and warehouse employees in the Canadian Pacific's Merchandise Services division walked out last Wednesday.

Heavy Hail
Rainstorm
Hit Duncan

DUNCAN—City streets appeared snow-covered Sunday during a hailstorm between thundering cloudbursts.

City officials said they could not remember such a heavy hailstorm in recent years. Cars in the centre of town were stopped and pedestrians sought shelter.

Power was off for 10 minutes when lightning hit a transmission line near the Trans-Canada Highway north of Duncan.

The hail fell shortly after 3 p.m. between heavy cloudbursts that clogged storm drains and then were filled with floating islands of hail nearly the size of marbles.

Flowers were ruined, a few hay fields owned by early farmers were knocked down and stucco was knocked from some houses.

Weather observer F.R. Newham measured 4 inch of rain, with overnight temperatures dropping to 46 degrees.

It was the heaviest rainfall since May 19. Last recorded hail was May 4, 1959. Thunder was last recorded 11 months ago.

Foresters here and at Lake Cowichan said no fires were started from any of the lightning strikes during the storm.

NANAIMO (CP)—The eight boats remaining in the 737-mile Ketchikan-to-Seattle outboard marathon race ran into bad weather Sunday.

Referee Al Franklin ordered a postponement of the final leg of the race in view of 25-knot winds.

Lady Rose Takes Over

PORT ALBERNI — The Lady Rose, formerly on the Gulf Islands run out of Vancouver, has taken over the tri-weekly service between Port Alberni and Barkley Sound points. She replaces the smaller vessel Uchuck I.

The Lady Rose is licensed to carry 200 passengers, has refrigerated holds and side doors for handling freight direct to logging camp floats.

LADYSMITH — The local curling club recorded a heavy vote of thanks to retiring president W. J. (Bill) Sanderson for his "good work" during two years in office.

New officers elected Friday night: president, Robert (Bob) McLean; vice-president, Robert Timothy; secretary-treasurer, elected the fifth consecutive term, William Hallinan.

DUNCAN — A 17-year-old Wellington youth found out yesterday that when he is wrong there is no use trying to throw part of the blame on someone else.

He smashed his car into the rear of a car ahead that was preparing to turn and caused an estimated $400 damage.

The blame was not all his, the young lawyer claimed, because the other driver had neglected to signal or use turning signals.

"You are supposed to have your car under control at all times," said Judge A. C. Sutton. "That's the great trouble today. People follow too closely and they can't stop in time."

The youth pleaded guilty to a charge of following too closely. Fine was $5 with $3 costs.

TOFINO — A 40-foot long vessel, Kanata, overdue at Tahsis, was found disabled and without radio communication, about four miles from the Leonard Island light, early yesterday morning.

Californians Win Derby

COURTENAY — Two Californians and a Vancouver man led the field in the annual Courtenay Rotary Club salmon derby which wound-up Sunday after a two-weekend flurry.

Over 500 boats landed 53 springs and cohos at a total of 495 pounds. Bad weather dropped the figures below those of previous years.

Harold Lee with a 51.8 tye and H. Macdon with a 34.9, both men from California, won themselves complete camping outfits as first prizes for Comox Bay and outside waters.

ALBERNI — A car caught on a stump as it crashed down a 30-yard embankment beside McCoy Lake Road was extensively damaged but the driver was unhurt.

RCMP said Norman Winston Wale, 611 Ninth Avenue North, Port Alberni, was the driver of the 1951 vehicle which went out of control and over the bank approximately a quarter of a mile from the junction of McCoy Lake Road with Great Central Road.

LADYSMITH — Board president William Hallinan, trustees Dan McKenzie and Eric P. Perron, administrator Ian Peddie, and matron Mrs. Andrew Campbell, R.N., will represent the Ladysmith General Hospital at the Western Canada Institute for Hospital Administrators and Trustees to be held at Vancouver during Labor Day week in September.

COURTENAY — Options to purchase a square block of property in the centre of the city for a large shopping centre development ran out to the weekend without any word from the holding company.

Capital Holdings Ltd. of Vancouver had options on 15 houses and lots for the past year. Eight of the options were up Friday and seven on Saturday.

DUNCAN — Parking meters are here to stay, Mayor Jack Dobson told city council last night.

It was made evident by the actions of some people who abused the free parking throughout the city to mark the opening of the Government Street parking lot.

FOUR SPACES — Mayor Dobson said he received "quite a few criticisms" and saw four cars from one office that were reported to be keeping four spaces during the rush Saturday shopping period.

Chamber of Commerce members are to be asked if they received similar complaints. A letter is to go to the chamber complimenting members on arrangements for the opening.

NOT INTERESTED — "A lot of the businessmen were conspicuous by their absence," commented the mayor.

"We had visitors from Victoria and as far north as Courtenay. Local businessmen didn't seem too interested. I'm not criticizing, they probably were busy."

An offer from the Community Arts Council will be accepted to hold a work party to clear the mound behind the parking lot, and to plant flowers on it.

BENCHES IN LOT

Councillors indicated they are in favor of letting a few businessmen put benches in the parking lot with small advertisements on them. Mayor Dobson said there is a possibility the rear of the lot might be used for a children's play area with swings being installed in the future.

Opening of the parking lot Saturday night was successful, the mayor reported. More than 150 persons were present.

Council approved a $500 donation to the exhibition to be put toward the cost of a 16 by 25-foot portable stage costing about $1,250.

The exhibition is to be complemented by letter for the stage idea. Exhibition president John Kerrone said in the letter the request would be the only one for money this year.

Prices are to be obtained on the basis of sanitary filters for the Kinmen wading pool. Health officers C. J. G. MacKenzie, head of Central Vancouver Island Health unit, reported during hot spells the pollution was high.

Mayor Dobson said it was so popular there was "standing room only." It has been so thick at times no more could get in, said Ald. James Saunders.

Mayor Dobson promised the city would continue to fight for a third railway crossing over the E & N tracks after a letter was received from the Board of Transport Commissioners that said it could take no further action until it heard from the city. The E & N has filed reasons why the crossing should not be allowed.

Button, button, who has the hub? Vancouver Island apparently has more hubs than a wobbly circus bicycle.

During a junket of civic and chamber of commerce officials the length of Vancouver Island last week, the title "hub" was claimed by Nanaimo as the trading centre of the island; Qualicum Beach as the vacationland centre; Courtenay as the geographical centre; Campbell River as the north island trading centre and Alert Bay as the hub of the north.

Sicamous

Victoria
Man
Killed

A 76-year-old Victoria man was killed Sunday morning in a two-car collision 16 miles east of Sicamous in the B.C. interior, it was learned here last night.

Lorne Edwin Mackenzie, 200 Douglas, a director of the Stanback Mining Co., was a passenger in his own car when it was struck by an onrushing car driven by Waltraud Reichel of Sardis, B.C., at 10:30 a.m.

Driver of the death car, Alvin Erickson, 58, of Revelstoke, and Reichel were in fair condition in a hospital at Salmon Arm, RCMP Sicamous detachment told the Colonist by telephone last night. Both drivers suffered chest injuries as a result of the crash.

Mr. Mackenzie was returning to Revelstoke where he had been investigating a gold mine in which his firm was interested. The body was taken to Salmon Arm, police said.

According to Mrs. Mackenzie, her husband left Victoria June 9 for the interior.

Besides his widow, Jean, at home, Mr. Mackenzie is survived by sons Alec, Vancouver, Kenneth, Nanaimo, Donald, Montreal; daughter Betty, Calgary; sister Viola, Toronto, and two brothers.

Three Cars Rolled
In Cowichan Accidents

DUNCAN — Three cars were rolled in separate accidents during the weekend, causing more than $500 damage to them but no serious injuries to their four occupants.

At Cowichan Lake, on South Shore Road, a car being driven by Florence May Ballegeer, 20, of Lake Cowichan, went out of control about 7 p.m. Sunday and flipped over after hitting a ditch.

More than $150 damage was done to the car owned by her father, Alphonse Ballegeer.

Passenger in the car was Dave Grigg, Meachle Lake.

Shortly before midnight Saturday Kenneth Parsey, Duncan, crashed and flipped the car he was driving south on the Trans-Canada Highway just south of town. Damage was about $200. He was alone.

Mr. Lionel Moulin, of Lake Cowichan, received minor cuts when her car ran off the Cowichan Lake Road near River Bottom Road, west of Duncan, just before 11 p.m. Saturday. Estimated damage was $200. She was alone.

Highways Minister Gagliardi's prediction of a "dirty" campaign took on a measure of substance yesterday, at least in the eyes of CCF Leader Bob Strachan.

A Vancouver Stock Exchange report which claimed that investment decisions involving more than $450,000,000 in B.C.'s gas and oil industry could be affected by election results was branded "dirty, rotten politics" by Mr. Strachan.

The report said that from long experience "the oil and gas industry is sensitive to nationalistic or socialistic attack."

So safe is it considered in Italy, he went on, that sister ships to the Flying Fish operating between Sicily and Italy over the Messina Strait and carrying 250,000 passengers a year are not required to carry any safety equipment.

The craft's owner said the hydrofoils not only allow it to operate at high speeds in relatively calm water (waves up to four feet high) but act as stabilizers when it is riding on its hull in rough water.

"In thousands of miles carrying thousands of passengers in the Caribbean there were only four people seasick," recalled the doctor, "and one was pregnant while another started to get seasick before she got off the dock."

Election Notebook

Newly-'Married' CCF
Has Much at Stake

By TERRY HAMMOND

Observers are pointing out that perhaps not even the Social Credit party has more at stake in the Sept. 12 election than the CCF.

First, the B.C. election will be the first test of CCF popularity since the formal marriage of the party with the Canadian Labor Congress.

Second, each successive failure at the polls takes a little more steam out of the basic CCF platform because at each new election more and more of the planks of socialism appear in the platforms of the old line parties.

The present campaign saw the CCF's long-nurtured medical expense coverage crop up among things their opponents are in favor of, and the government's plans to put B.C. Hydro in charge of Columbia River development takes public ownership a step further.

Victoria Liberal candidate Geoff Edgelow, who is also an alderman, broke down for a public meeting last night the net effect of the federal-provincial winter-work grants to this city.

Into the program went a total of $60,820 which provided four months work for 21 men on public works and four to six weeks work for 15 men on parks, but, Mr. Edgelow claimed, Victoria taxpayers put up $42,000, the federal government $12,800 and the province only $5,000.

None of the premier's "pie-in-the-sky speeches," he said, lessens "the grim fact that (unemployment) is the number one crisis today."

Esquimalt Conservative candidate Jimmy Bryant announced last night he's going to keep his campaign in the family—his son Ray, a second-year law student at UBC and recently married, is returning to the city from his honeymoon this week to act as "Pop's" campaign manager.

Jimmy says he plans no public meetings before the election, "but I'm making hundreds of calls all over the constituency."

Medical Issue
Grabbed

Rolling northward aboard the government-owned PGE railway, of which he is president, Premier Bennett seemed unconcerned over an earlier statement by the CCF leader that a Sacred survey-in-depth had warned him of an impending CCF victory.

He said he was opening his campaign in the north because "the issue in this election is going to be the dynamic development in the golden sixties—that is the issue and it means jobs."

In Vancouver Health Minister Eric Martin predicted increased hospital insurance coverage as a result of a provincial-federal agreement, and pointed out that in the past eight years B.C. hospital patients have been paid $225,000,000 in the acute care field.

In Vancouver yesterday Liberal leader Ray Perrault accused Premier Bennett of "whistling by the unemployment graveyard."

"None of the premier's 'pie-in-the-sky speeches,'" he said, lessens "the grim fact that (unemployment) is the number one crisis today."

Between fair and political campaign, Saanich Progressive Conservative candidate Victor Virgin is going to be a busy man.

His schedule already includes: Aug. 29, Saanich luncheon for Burnaby PC candidate Mrs. Bea Zucco, Blue Room; Sept. 2, Sidney Chamber of Commerce all-candidates meeting; Sept. 3 and 5, Saanich Agricultural Fair—Mr. Virgin is an official; Sept. 6, Oak Bay municipal hall, in support of J. on the speed capabilities of the Flying Fish, previously reported as high as 40 knots. The craft cruises at 30 knots and at full throttle will reach 36 knots (41.4 miles an hour), he said.

He thought the vessel might make a maiden trial run to Victoria later this week.

Fare for the Victoria-Bellingham service will be $2.50 each way and the Flying Fish is scheduled to make two round trips a day.

Officials of the operating company are currently paving the way for Canadian approval to operate the international service.

U.S. Law Responsible for Hydrofoil Service

Victoria became one of three ports-of-call in a proposed hydrofoil passenger ferry service because of a U.S. law which prohibits foreign-built vessels from plying between American mainland ports.

Dr. Frank A. Calderone, New York, the owner of the Italian-built hydrofoil vessel Flying Fish, disclosed at a press conference here yesterday that the primary purpose of putting the craft on a Victoria-Bellingham-Friday Harbor schedule is to prove the economic feasibility of hydrofoil operation in North American waters.

He said a U.S. shipping law which forbids domestic coastal shipping with "foreign-built bottoms" forced organizers of the Hydrofoil Operations and Development Co. of Bellingham to find a foreign port—Victoria—to round out their list of terminals.

But he hopes the inauguration of the Victoria-Bellingham run, still some weeks away, will not only prove the economic feasibility of hydrofoil operation in the Pacific but also of the chosen route.

Dr. Calderone, who bought

Flying Fish in Italy in 1957 and operated it briefly in the Caribbean on an experimental basis, made it clear that the group behind the Georgia Strait proposal hopes to create a strong passenger demand for such a service with a view to putting larger hydrofoils into production in the U.S. and Canada.

NOT A FAILURE — He said operation of the Flying Fish in the Caribbean was not a failure and has not been abandoned.

The craft was taken out of service there because of lack of proper maintenance facilities, and will return after some months when such facilities are available.

He explained that because the craft is made of aluminum and because its foils must be kept scrupulously clean in order to provide maximum lift, the Flying Fish should be lifted out of salt water weekly.

Caribbean ports lacked a crane large enough to lift the 20-ton vessel and as a consequence the cost of the regular scrubbing and paint inspection ran to $2,000 every time Flying Fish came out of water.

Such cranes are available in both Victoria and Bellingham, he pointed out, and, as a result, the weekly hull and hydrofoil maintenance program can be carried out in about two hours.

Dr. Calderone, one-time medical director of the United Nations Health Service and a former deputy director of the World Health Organization under Victoria's Dr. Brock Chisholm, said that because of extensive bulkheading and the use of buoyant plastics the Flying Fish is unsinkable.

CONSIDERED SAFE — So safe is it considered in Italy, he went on, that sister ships to the Flying Fish operating between Sicily and Italy over the Messina Strait and carrying 250,000 passengers a year are not required to carry any safety equipment.

The craft's owner said the hydrofoils not only allow it to operate at high speeds in relatively calm water (waves up to four feet high) but act as stabilizers when it is riding on its hull in rough water.

"In thousands of miles carrying thousands of passengers in the Caribbean there were only four people seasick," recalled the doctor, "and one was pregnant while another started to get seasick before she got off the dock."

Space Life Agrees With Soviet Dogs

Buy BCE—Coldwell

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said here Monday that the British Columbia Electric Company must be bought out as the first move in saving and building this province for British Columbians.

Green Hits Socreds

VANCOUVER—External Affairs Minister Green announced Monday he will take part in British Columbia's election campaign. He criticized Social Credit Premier Bennett for "throwing his babies on the federal lap."

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's two space-travelling dogs took a public bow in Moscow Monday and if there is anything wrong with life in the cosmos it hasn't shown up in them yet.

At a dog conference at the Russian news agency Tass I patted both dogs. From looking at them, you'd never know they were whizzing around the earth about 200 miles up as late as Saturday.

The dogs were nervous at first. They quickly became friendly after first giving me a growl. Strelka (Little Arrow) came and licked my hand.

Strelka and Belka (Squirrel) are small dogs about 10 pounds each. The size of fox terriers, they are of mixed ancestry.

HARNESS REMOVED

The electric harness of the space ride had been removed from the dogs. But they were sweaters to hide the electrodes still buried under their hides.

A rat, two black mice and two white mice were in little cages about four by eight inches and they galloped around inside.

The Russian newspaper Pravda, went into some detail on the dogs' reactions in flight as revealed by a television camera aboard the space ship.

"At the start the dogs looked alarmed and bewildered at the noise of takeoff. They were disturbed—dashed around during the first seconds of flight. Then the increased force of the pressure on the takeoff pushed them to the floor."

"Strelka tried to resist with her paws and looked around in alarm."

WEIGHTLESS STATE

"Then came the state of weightlessness. The dogs hung in the air. The paws and heads hung limply down. Gradually they began raising their heads and moving their paws. Belka got angry and started barking. But gradually they got used to everything."

Premier Pledges New PGE Link

By H. L. JONES
FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Premier Bennett announced Monday night that the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern railway has opened negotiations with the Northern Alberta Railway for a second connection between the two lines.

The PGE already connects with the NAR at Dawson Creek. The premier told a political rally that if the NAR will build from Hines Creek to the B.C. border the PGE will be extended northward to make the next connections.

The move would provide direct rail transport for a vast productive oil and agriculture area on both sides of the border that now mostly depends on truck transport.

The premier, opening his Sept. 12 election campaign, made the announcement during an hour-and-a-half address before a meeting attended by some 600 persons, probably the largest political meeting ever held in this centre of B.C.'s growing northern oil country. The premier reviewed the eight-year record of his government and made these other main points.

1. Construction will start shortly on a $93,000,000 natural gas line from Fort Nelson to Taylor near here.

VANCOUVER-BOUND? 2. Construction will begin forthwith on a vast oil gathering system to bring B.C. crude to the refinery at Taylor and "if there is enough oil we will see that a pipeline is built to Vancouver."

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The newspaper El Mundo said Monday Venezuela is mobilizing its air and naval forces against possible attack by the Dominican Republic.

Seamen Leaders Call Off Strike

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—Leaders of the "National Seamen's Reform Movement" called off a wildcat strike here Monday night after admitting strikers were showing signs of discontent.

But strike leaders in some other British ports were reported urging seamen to stick it out.

Southampton leaders announced their decision after a meeting attended by about 50 strikers—the smallest turnout since the strike began two weeks ago.

The leaders here, however, said they would still go on recruiting members for their organization, aimed as much against the seamen's union as the shipowners. The "reform movement" made the original call for the walkout, which spread rapidly to other ports. One of the strike leaders said the men already involved in the stoppage were being advised to return to their ships. No further attempt would be made to bring out on strike the crews of any of the liners now in Southampton.

Advance Poll Dates Set

Advance polls for voters of the Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay ridings who can't cast their ballots Sept. 12 will be held Sept. 9, 9 and 10 in the Y.M.C.A., Victoria returning officer A. M. Browne said yesterday.

Hours of voting will be from 1 to 9 p.m. each day.

More Than 500 Die In Cholera Epidemic

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI)—More than 500 persons have died in a cholera epidemic that has swept across west Pakistan, the ministry of health reported yesterday. The epidemic has been brought under control, it was said, but reports of a few new cases continue to trickle in. Officials said the U.S. international co-operation administration had been of great help in a mass inoculation program.

Japan's Peace Offer Stalled 21 Days Before Hiroshima

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newspaper reports on still-secret state papers say they show former president Harry Truman allowed Russia to stall off a Japanese peace offer three weeks before the first atomic bomb wrecked Hiroshima.

The reports say also that Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin once praised Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as an "honest man" for turning over to the Russians 135,000 German troops who had tried to surrender to American forces. These and other statements

... dies of cancer

Lyricist Dies

Hammerstein Era Ends

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Oscar Hammerstein II, famed Broadway lyricist and producer, died of cancer today. He was 65.

Hammerstein died at his home at nearby Highland Farms of stomach cancer.

HIT OF CENTURY

With Richard Rodgers, Hammerstein wrote some of the most notable and popular shows of the century.

"I am in love with a wonderful theatre," was Hammerstein's own comment on the career that swept across 40 years of entertainment enterprise.

SHOW HISTORY

One biographer noted: "He has been associated with more notable musicals than any other showman in the history of the American theatre."

When composer Cole Porter was once asked to name the most profound change in musical theatre in recent years, he replied tersely, "Rodgers and Hammerstein."

ALL COMPOSERS

He began by writing a play in 1920, but soon after developed into a lyricist, writing words for the music of virtually every ranking composer—Rudolph Friml, Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern, Vincent Youmans and George Gershwin.

Poignant, tender and touching were the rhymes that poured in an endless torrent from his pen, until there were the words of more than a thousand songs.

WHAT HE WROTE

Among them were "Ol' Man River," "Who?" "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," "Only Make Believe." Later came the products of R and H teamwork—"Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "People Will Say We're in Love," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "You'll Never Walk Alone," "Some Enchanted Evening," and "Younger Than Springtime."

"I know the world is filled with trouble and many injustices," he said of his unabashed sentimentality, "but reality is as beautiful as it is ugly."

U.S. Sees Latin Plot

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—The United States yesterday accused Cuba of training red spies and guerrilla fighters "to spread the Communist revolution throughout Latin America."

Cuban Foreign Minister

Raul Roa had no comment on the startling charge made to the American foreign ministers gathered here in emergency meeting to consider the threat of growing Communist influence in the hemisphere.

He said that "all I'll have to say I will . . . at the conference."

But diplomats other than Cuban expressed concern that the United States had failed to document the charge properly, although many of them did not doubt the truth of it.

The United States said that "an international work brigade" formed in Havana was "a common Communist device" for carrying out subversion.

Shortly after the surprise release of the documents the Cuban delegation invited newsmen to a reception scheduled for next Wednesday night to see movies of "interest."

The nature of the films were not known but they presumably related to Cuba's planned presentation of charges against the United States before the conference.

The sensational U.S. accusations, made public only an hour before the start of yesterday's conference proceedings, said that Cuba had imported more than 200 recruits for a "work brigade," most of them from Iron Curtain countries.

The U.S. said the brigade ostensibly was formed to build an "educational centre" in the Sierra Maestra, but it noted that the Cuban government newspaper Revolution editorially boasted its members "will use arms to defend Cuba."

The charges were made in a document presented to the inter-American peace committee of the Organization of American States.

Cuba also was accused of attacking religious freedom in Cuba, described by the U.S. as "the last remaining vestige of individual liberty" in that country.

Alaska

Volcanic Ash Blots Sun

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Clouds of volcanic ash blotted out the sun over a 50-mile-square area Monday, following the eruption of a volcano on the Alaska Peninsula.

The eruption was in the Katmai National Monument area, where Mt. Trident, one of a number of active volcanoes in the Valley of 10,000 Smokes, erupted last week.

The most recent eruption was believed to be Mt. Martin, a 6,100-foot volcano south of Mt. Trident.

A coast guard plane was dispatched to investigate.

Allies Back German Bid To Rearm

LONDON (AP)—The supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe has formally supported a West German move to build bigger warships urgently wanted for defence of the Baltic Sea, it was reported Monday.

Allied officials said U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad also has recommended that the Germans be allowed to manufacture electronic mines hitherto banned as an offensive weapon.
